JUDITH ANDERSON linoleum cut from life by Patricia Cunningham

Stirring Portrayal by Great Actress in "Family Portrait"

By JOHN BURR

Judith Anderson is one of the most gifted of living actresses. Last night at the Del Monte Summer Theater Miss Anderson, as the long-suffering "Mary" of "Family Portrait" proved that to my utter satisfaction. I think the most eloquent, if unelegant bits of passing praise that I heard last night came from the lips of a young society deb who quipped, but with unintentional gravity, "an actress like Anderson certainly puts the 'glamor girls' in a bad light." This testimony is not something new or startling for this same brilliant actress has been electrifying audiences for a number of years and by this time every critic worth the name has had reason to pay tribute to the dramatic talents of this actress par excellence.

Actually this story should concern itself with the merits and faults real or imagined of the latest Del Monte Summer Theater effort which happens to be a fine play from the collaborating pens of Lenore Coffe and William Joyce Cowen called "Family Portrait." It just happens that Judith Anderson dominates the entire production and if I have put the cart before the horse I suppose I must make apology. I don't mean to infer that the supporting cast was negligible. As a matter of fact, there were some highly competent bits.

But to begin, "Family Portrait" is a simple, home-spun tale of a little known and much neglected family that, but for the curious circumstance that the mother of the family gave birth to a babe that all of mankind was to know eventually as Jesus of Nazareth, would have remained obscure unto eternity. It is necessarily a hypothetical story but the treatment is so sincere and kindly that the listener is quickly captivated and hangs on to each uttered word as he would a pearl. Specifically the story has to do with the family of Jesus during the last three dramatic years of his life: years that were necessarily full of trials for that family, especially Mary the mother of Jesus upon whose shoulders the greater travail lay, for it is her abiding faith in her son that threatens to disperse her other sons into hostile camps.

Whatever credit belongs to Bernard Szold, who directed the play, I give freely, but I have a suspicion that Mary (that is, Anderson) took care of the destinies of her brood as well during rehearsals as she did during actual performance time; and that is a simple observation. The settings were in good taste and achieved a simula-

City Appreciates Bach Festival

At Wednesday evening's council meeting it was decided that the City of Carmel will donate $200 to the Bach Festival this year, rather than the usual $100 because of the many ways in which the city benefits from this annual occasion. The motion to do this was made by Councilman P. A. McCreery.

COMING EVENTS

Zoning Battle Won Decisively By Old Carmel

Council Considers General Petroleum's Arguments for New Gas Station and Throws Them All Out of the Window

It was an interesting Wednesday evening. There were Stuka bombers over the Soviet border. R. A. F. bombers over Boulogne. German forces advanced in Libya. British forces attacked Damascus. Joe Louis knocked out Billy Conn in the thirteenth round at New York's Polo Grounds. And in the Carmel City Council chambers General Petroleum Corporation's application for reclassification of its property on the corner of Ocean and Junipero was unanimously denied.

City Hall Is Dead; Long Live the Jail!

When, on Wednesday night last, the council received official returns from the city hall-jail poll, one fact was evident: no city hall will be built on, in or around the park. A corollary is that in all probability Carmel is to have no city hall, since the cost of placing it anywhere else is prohibitive.

City Clerk Van Brower read the projects' death warrant, a letter from the Business Association with latest results of the recent post card poll. Old Carmelites once more said "No" to city halls, jails, and similar frills of conventional government in this manner:

Total number of returns..621
For the park site235

Two of these suggest closing Sixth street and enlarging the park, leaving a lane only. One suggests building police quarters right now—city hall later.

And thus ended a battle which has raged intermittently since April 9, when this Corporation announced its purchase of the M. J. Murphy lot, and declared its intention of putting up another gas station.

And thus Old Carmel proved it was still alive and kicking and appreciated fully the significance and the danger of "spot zoning."

Fred Bechdolt, former councilman, who was present at the meeting, expressed the text of the whole opposition in these words: "Once you begin to let down the bars, once you begin to amend, once you begin to yield, you might just as well give up zoning."

Prior to this he had said: "The purpose of the zoning ordinance is to insure as far as possible the beauty and simplicity of the town, to give its residents all protection for safety, beauty, pleasure of living in Carmel." And had added, "A change of ordinance is only justified by some emergency or change of feeling on the part of the people."

Pertinent arguments for the measure, as submitted earnestly by A. J. Schlichtmann, representative of the Corporation, and an-

We Were Dizzy After Business Association Dinner

So on Tuesday evening at Hotel La Playa the Carmel Business Association turned out in a body, 53 strong, to eat a hearty dinner and listen to some hearty speeches, and form countless committees for one project or another.

Paul Dougherty had been announced beforehand as principal speaker, and, indeed, he was, though various others took the ficer before him to romance about their favorite interests.

There was dynamic Corum Jackson, who led off with the opinion that this was the most important meeting the Business Association had ever held, and then spoke fervently about how much producer Blackie O'Neal was doing for our community and about the forthcoming Robinson Jeffers play in Forest Theater. As chairman of the Park Commission which rebuilt Forest Theater, he had material on which to base a stirring argument.

Blackie himself, spoke briefly of his meeting with Judith Anderson in Santa Monica and the circumstances of her consenting to play out-of-doors in "Tower Beyond Tragedy." Expressing his feeling for Carmel, he graciously included the Little Theater as one of our biggest assets, and finished with an appropriately appealing verse.

Fred Godwin, who looks enough like Blackie O'Neal to be his cousin, talked about the dangers of our beach, explained the unusual rip-tides this season as being due to winter rains, praised the work of Fort Ord soldiers in setting up protective measures (which, incidentally Carmelites have been

WAR OF NERVES

On Monday, Bill Bassett told us of his job with Bill Gould's Pacific Grove "Tide" as Carmel representative. On Tuesday Bill Gould confirmed this interesting news. Yesterday, we were informed that preparations for a journalistic bombing attack through our post office were still in process and that we must be patient.

THE DOGS DO BARK

Last week at the west portico of the White House, FALLA Roosevelt, the Scottie belonging to President Roosevelt, was inaugurated as president of "Barkers for Britain", the new organization of dogs created by "Bundles for Britain."

LADDIE BOY Murray is sponsoring a "Barkers for Britain" club here in the village. He says that a handsome bronze tab is the sign for membership, and the tags may be purchased at the "Bundles for Britain" headquarters at Seventh and Dolores. The money will be used for the relief of innocent, bombed-out civilians in Britain. LADDIE urges all his canine friends to join him and FALLA as "Barkers for Britain."

MARIGOLD Martin is a very impatient person. When her mistress, Mrs. Charles Martin, leaves her in the car, she will wait just so long for her mistress to return, and if she hasn't come by the time MARIGOLD thinks she should, the little Cocker simply blows the horn to let her mistress know that she has been gone long enough.

The other day MARIGOLD and her son, TANNY, were sitting in the car in front of Pine Inn, waiting for their mistress. MARIGOLD was impatiently blowing the horn to the intense delight of the passers-by. Everyone who passed stopped and looked at MARIGOLD. She didn't pay the slightest attention to anyone, but just calmly sat there blowing the horn with her paw until her mistress finally came.

MICKEY McIntosh is torn between pride and regret these days as he prepares to leave Carmel Valley for the Sunny South. His master, Colonel L. W. McIntosh, has been called to active duty at Maxwell Field, and MICKEY and Mrs. McIntosh (known to the theater-going public as that very fine actress, Willa Mae McIntosh) are going with him. Of course MICKEY is fairly bursting with pride for the Colonel, and sighing with regret at having to leave his many friends. However the prospect of the trip across the continent is helping to soften the grief of departure, for MICKEY just loves to ride in an automobile, but he hasn't been doing much of it since that last time he fell out of the car.

His friends will miss the dashing airedale as much as he misses them. They all wish him the best of luck and a fine trip (and sincerely hope he doesn't fall out of the car on the way).

A touching letter from ALI BABA de Kinnoull, refugee French poodle, tells of the tragic death of his sister, GRISETTE, "in circumstances so gruesome and horrible that they make my astrakhan coat stand on end."

This is the fate that befell poor GRISETTE who had gone to Brussels to live:

"On the second of February she was arrested and led, by some of the horrid grey-green trousers that swarm over Belgium, to a slaughterhouse on the Chaussee de Ninone, where she was ignominiously murdered, cut up, and made into what they called "leg of mutton", "lamb chops", and — oh irony! — "hot dogs"! Then these camouflaged remains of poor GRISETTE were sold at a clandestine market at the price of $2.50 per pound."

Poor GRISETTE, what an unhappy end! Alas!

The Most Amusing Sight of the Week:

SPATTS Ogden sitting on the roof of the Christian Science reading room watching the tourists stroll by. She wore a broad grin. SPATTS seemed to be getting as much of a kick out of looking them over as they were getting out of looking over the village.

See the Paintings— Then Buy Your Ticket

Last Monday an exhibit of 100 pictures were hung in the Carmel Art Gallery, but no ordinary exhibit was this—these were paintings, etchings and drawings generously donated by members of the Carmel Art Association which will be given away on July 15. Five hundred new one-year memberships to the Association are being sold with a chance for one out of every five ticket holders to possess a painting. In this drive for new memberships it is hoped that $2500 will be raised, not to save a failing institution — far from it—but to cover certain repairs and improvements and to aid in more complete operation of the Art Gallery in the future.

One hundred artists have given freely in this amazing gesture of loyalty and their work is on display at the Gallery from now until July 15 when it will fall into the hands of newcomers. Everyone of the pictures are superlative and characteristic of the outstanding painters who live on this peninsula—pictures which anyone, with any artistic sense at all, would be delighted to own.

Go in and see what you might walk home with, then buy your membership ticket before they vanish.

Kit Carson Tonight, Tomorrow, Long Voyage Home, Playhouse

The current film at the Playhouse is "Kit Carson", a stirring drama of the dashing adventurer who helped build our West. The picture stars Jon Hall, supported by Lynn Bari and a large cast of well known players. It will be succeeded Sunday, the 22nd, by the film version of "The Long Voyage Home", a blending of several magnificent sea yarns by Eugene O'Neill. The leading players are Thomas Mitchell and John Wayne, heading a brilliant cast.

Before our next issue the Playhouse will open, on Thursday night a revival of the incomparable thriller, "Night Train", starring Margaret Lockwood and Rex Harrison. This is the picture which was selected by six New York dailies as one of the best five films of the year, and is being repeated at the Playhouse for the second time this season.

Honeymoon Week-end at Hotel Del Monte Scheduled June 27-29

The Honeymoon Week-end reunion, scheduled for June 27-29 at Hotel Del Monte, is building up to more impressive proportions each day. Couples will be at Hotel Del Monte from all over the United States. Some of them were either married or spent their honeymoon at Del Monte in the late 1800's. Many of them got their start at Del Monte sometime within the past 25 years. An even greater number belong to the young married set whose marriages took place during the last year or two. Some are even newlyweds whose honeymoons are barely ended.

All of them belong to that great Del Monte honeymoon alumnus which is so large in number that it isn't an exaggeration to say that Del Monte is perhaps the greatest honeymoon mecca in the country.

In keeping with the importance of the occasion, Hotel Del Monte has planned a week-end program of unusual interest and gaiety.

Naturally, they haven't overlooked this opportunity for some particularly interesting matches in both golf and tennis tournaments, and suitable trophies have been ordered in keeping with the occasion.

Highlight of the week-end will be the Dinner Dance Saturday night in the Bali Room. Lovely I. Magnin models will present a fashion show featuring a complete wedding entourage and a mock wedding. A wedding cake of architectural proportions is being "constructed" in the Del Monte kitchens and will be cut by Carl S. Stanley during the evening. The famous dance team of Lundeen and Lozano of San Francisco, which has been performing to a crowded Mural Room at the St. Francis as well as the Palace's Persian Room, will present their exciting Latin-American dances done in fluorescent lighting.

A Honeymoon Breakfast will be held in the main dining room Sunday morning followed by a putting contest on the green outside the hotel. Dr. Theodore Bell of St. John's Chapel has prepared special services for all the couples who were married at his church and for any others who wish to attend.

Luncheon around the Roman Plunge will highlight this day and will feature a bathing fashion parade and swimming and diving exhibitions. Carvel Craig and his Hotel Del Monte orchestra will be on hand during the luncheon hours to make music.

The Annual Del Monte Dog Show will be held on this day, also, and will add its quota of gaiety and interest to this gala week-end.

NEW MANAGEMENT

BANQUET HELD IN FIRE HOUSE LAST NIGHT

Instead of engaging in their usual Thursday night fire drill, members of the Carmel fire department engaged in a little bit of hearty eating when they held their annual informal banquet last night in the hall above the fire station on Sixth and San Carlos. As many past and present members who were able to attend were there and Steve Patterson saw to it that lots of food got over so all the engines on the second floor of the fire house were very well stocked.

Red Cross Gets Appreciative Letter from Shanghai

All those interested in our Red Cross chapter, and particularly the devoted workers in the war production unit, will be interested in the following communication from Shanghai, recently received by Dr. G. H. Taubles, expressing appreciation of the splendid local efforts made on behalf of Chinese Relief.

SHANGHAI
ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS
ASSOCIATION
Shanghai, China,
May 23, 1941.

Carmel Chapter,
American Red Cross,
Monterey, California, U. S. A.
Dear Sirs:

Our Association's Tuberculosis Hospital, in whose maintenance and development since it was established towards the end of 1938, the American Red Cross has been most generous in its allocation of timely aid both in cash and in kind, has just received another allocation of the following gifts which, we are informed, were in part supplied by you:

130 1B cotton pads, 6 by 12 in.
42 A4 gauze rolls, 3 yds. by 4 1/2 in.

12 3C strings
170 2B cotton pads, 12 by 1 in.
400 A2 sponges 2 by 1 1/2 in.
3060 A1 sponges, 4 by 4 in.
27 "M" Wrapping Towels.
95 3B abdominal pads
100 A3 fluffs, 6 in.

When we took over about the end of October, 1938, from the Shanghai International Red Cross, the responsibility for the refugee and destitute tuberculars formerly under its care, our free hospital only had a capacity of 100 beds. Through a munificent grant by the American Advisory Committee (for Civilian Relief in China) the number of beds was increased to 220 and since that time another ten beds had been added thus making this hospital of ours (always working to capacity) the largest single disease free hospital in Shanghai.

From time to time cracked wheat, rice, tinned food and medical supplies have been given to us for the use of this hospital and such bountiful aids greatly help the hospital maintenance, entirely dependent upon voluntary public subscriptions and official grants in aid.

For this latest allotment of gifts for relief purposes received by our free hospital, we beg to express to you in the name of the Shanghai Anti-Tuberculosis Association and on behalf of our destitute patients our sincere appreciation and gratitude.

Yours very truly,
LEE S. HUIZENG,
Honorary Secretary.

Bach Festival Rehearsal Schedule

Gastone Usigli, conductor of Carmel's Seventh Annual Bach Festival, July 21-27, has called a special extra rehearsal of the chorus for this Sunday evening, at 7:30 o'clock. This rehearsal and the Monday evening rehearsal will be held on the auditorium stage, so that section rehearsals of women and men may be held concurrently. All members of the chorus are urged to be present.

The first rehearsal of the Bach Festival orchestra has been called for Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. All interested in playing are requested to bring their instruments and try out for Mr. Usigli. The rehearsal will be held in the auditorium of the Sunset school.

IMPORTANT MEETING TUESDAY—

On Tuesday, the 24th, at 2 p. m., at the home of Miss Dora Dutton on Scenic Drive, Sheriff Borges and Supervisor Jacobsen will explain their plans for better police protection of the Point. Those interested should attend.

Full Addresses Now Required for All Incoming Mail

From now on persons writing letters to Carmel are going to have to be much more explicit and much less vague in their addressing or else there're going to be a lot of letters marked "returned to sender, incomplete address", for the post office is starting a new regime in order to eliminate the unnecessary expenditure on wrongly-addressed mail.

Postal Inspector Thomas W. Evans from San Jose was in Carmel last week to make a clerical survey of the post office and found that over $5.50 was spent each day in trying to find the correct address for insufficiently addressed mail. In this new drive Postmaster Ernest Bixler urges all mail-receivers to let their full address be known.

If you have a box, have your mail sent to that box; if you get your mail at general delivery, have the sender mark it General Delivery.

Bixler also issued statements to Carmel business houses, many of which make no effort to put box numbers on their outgoing mail, that if they bring in mailing lists to the post office, corrections will be made for a slight charge.

Bixler also stated that due to orders from Washington, there will be a raise in box dues starting June 20 when the rents must be paid. Sixty-cent boxes are now 75 cents; 75 cent boxes now $1.00; $1.00 now $1.50; and $1.50 now $2.00.

Because of the long waiting list for boxes, box holders are advised to pay promptly or else it will be necessary for the post office to turn their boxes over to newcomers.

Squawking Birdmen Plan Big Things for July 4th

The Squawking Birdmen of the Peninsula are going to squawk themselves hoarse over the weekend of the Fourth of July when they hold "open house" for visiting flyers and the public and put on an "aerial picnic" for the members of a number of aviation country clubs.

Tom Mathews, president of the Squawking Birdmen, anticipates that more than a hundred aviators and their friends from all parts of the state will arrive to join the Birdmen and to compete in the special contests which are being arranged. There will be a number of light planes displayed in the hangars and the contests planned will be in navigation and spot landing.

Golden Bough Summer School Opens June 30

As a rule, Ted Kuster is a pretty busy man who does a lot of running around, but he's busier than ever these days, for June 30 is coming—and coming mighty fast. June 30 is encircled twice on the Kuster calendar because that's the day on which his Golden Bough Summer School of the Theater begins, drawing again to Carmel, students from all sections of the country who come here for a two-months professional and cultural training in the art of the theater.

The faculty will again include Talbot Pearson; Marion Hill, with Robert Clark assisting; Ruth Austin, with Margaret Mather as assistant; and Edward Kuster, formerly coach and director of American and British plays at the Max Reinhardt Theater Workshop in Hollywood. An addition to the faculty will be Dr. Kurt Baer, head of the dramatic department of Occidental College of Los Angeles. Talbot Pearson and his wife, Marion Hill, need no introduction to Carmel. Their work in last year's school, as well as their personal popularity, gained them many friends here who will welcome their return.

The courses offered, which naturally overlap and which, when taken as a whole, form an integrated body of teaching are: Acting, Stagecrafts, Productions and Advanced Seminars. Courses in all departments of the theater will entail concentrated and intensive work designed to cover as much ground as possible in the nine weeks of the summer session.

A part-time course in acting is also provided for and diction students merely wishing to improve their speech for everyday life are also being enrolled. A feature of this work will be the frequent recording of students' voices on records made privately or during class.

MRS. M. B. ARMSTRONG DIES

Mrs. Minnie B. Armstrong of Pasadena, who was visiting for the summer in her Carmel home, died at a peninsula hospital on Wednesday, June 11.

Mrs. Armstrong, who was a frequent visitor to Carmel with her family for many years, leaves her husband, Herbert Armstrong, Pasadena, and two sons, Thomas B. Armstrong, Sausalito, and Herbert Armstrong Jr., Los Angeles.

Services were held last Saturday afternoon at the T. A. Dorney funeral home in Monterey.

Government Insures Deposits Now at Carmel Building and Loan

James C. Doud and Barnet Segal are justly proud of a new and shining certificate on the office wall of Carmel Building and Loan Association, for it means their business here is now receiving powerful sponsorship and insurance guarantee from the United States Treasury.

The certificate designates the membership of this local financial firm in the Federal Home Loan Bank System and means that all accounts up to $5000 are now insured by the Federal Government.

It makes the Carmel Building and Loan Association, of which James C. Doud is president and Barnet Segal secretary, a full-fledged member of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Los Angeles, which itself is insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Corporation of Washington, D. C. It offers many opportunities to serve our community in the most constructive way possible, to maintain a thrift-and-home financing institution of the highest order. It explains why every Carmelite may not only have confidence in doing business with this firm, but may enjoy the substantial earnings it gives on all deposits.

This is an opportune time to gain a generous increase, a liberal return on savings investments with Carmel Building and Loan Association because the semi-annual period closes on July 1, at which time withdrawals may be made from savings accounts without any loss of interest.

All of us know and have the greatest respect for the men who are conducting the business of this institution on Ocean avenue. Both "Jimmie" Doud and "Barney" Segal are old Carmelites, who for years have had the best interests of our community at heart.

The Doud family has been identified with the Monterey Peninsula for over a century, and "Jimmie" now has not only large interests in the county, but is one of Carmel's biggest property owners. "Barney" founded the Bank of Carmel in 1923, and managed it successfully for a number of years.

Carmel Building and Loan Association is a splendid asset to our town, and in the uncertain days which lie ahead will do much to help and protect our citizens.

other representative from the San Francisco office, were as follows:

(1) Two hundred forty-five individuals within the area had given their signatures in approval of rezoning as against 236 who had protested.

(2) The marked growth of Carmel justified an additional gas station.

(3) There would be, in the Corporation's opinion, little traffic hazard on this intersection because of clear visibility.

(4) Traffic congestion would be diminished in this area because there would be space behind the gas station for parking 15 to 20 cars.

(5) The beauty of this spot, at the foot of our hill where a lumber yard now exists, would be enhanced—as illustrated by Hugh W. Comstock's attractive drawing.

Arguments of the opposition, as submitted by Fred Bechdolt, Bill Bassett, Clara Kellogg Mrs. Anne Sherman and others, were:

(1) Though the number of written protests was less than the number in favor, it was obvious that the former represented the sentiment of the majority of Carmelites.

(2) As Bill Bassett once expressed it, we have enough gas stations now in Carmel to serve a panzer unit.

(3) There would undoubtedly be a traffic hazard. A machine coming down the hill and wanting gas at that station would have to cut across Ocean avenue to the left, and at a speed not easily regulated at the foot of a steep grade. There would be many cars entering Ocean from the Junipero street entrances and exits of the station, which would present a danger.

(4) There would be more congestion of traffic on that part of Ocean avenue.

(5) Aesthetically, there can be nothing beautiful about a gas station. The lumber yard there now is more in keeping with Carmel.

To the argument presented by the Corporation that another gas station had been granted a permit within the zone, Clara Kellogg, former member of the Council, replied that that had been before the present ordinance, before there was any zoning, and had simply been a special permit granted Joe Olivera so that he might sell gas at night.

Most of the arguments for and against the measure were emotional, which made them interesting. Only realistic argument, which was dead against the measure and caused its defeat, was the principal involved in "spot-zoning."

Thanks are due Mrs. Anne Sherman, who was responsible for collecting over 120 signed protests, the loyal citizens who aided her, and the Council members who recognized the danger to Carmel of changing the zoning law, and acted accordingly.

Stopping with Mrs. John Clay over the week-end is Miss Ann Houston, sister of Walter Houston, Hollywood actor.

THE STRANGE MAN

A SHORT STORY
By PETER WOLFF

Odd how a single driving need could alter a woman's life! Now that Lucy Parrish lay dying—so hinted Dr. Morse, who had known her for ages—the need grew only more intense. To see Charles once more. To hold his stubby hand in her thin ones, see in his eyes the old unchanging love. It wasn't asking much. They'd been married 30 years; good years, until an unnatural irritation had seized him and puzzled, she had consented to divorce. She'd even seen an ironic humor in that, absurdly confident he would return. But not of late. He had been married, now, seven years!

Dr. Morse's words drifted from the next room, "Anemia's the result, not the cause. No appetite—simply won't eat enough to keep her alive! She's lost interest, needs a stiff stimulant. If she could forget him—"

It wasn't so easy. Lucy Parrish stirred restlessly, small and faded, without color yet still pretty, her mind racing. She had overcome hatred for Charles' wife, but her need for him continued: a relentless, sharp agony. It never slept. And that longing had broken her.

A quick thought flooded her, a flashing hope. Impulsively she picked up the bedside telephone and dialed Charles' office. Pride alone had kept her from this. He had gone on brief trips before when he always telephoned. Usually he began, "Lucy, I love you—like the very devil!" Often she made a trivial excuse to call him back. Now, it would be like that. To say something she had forgotten. What was it? That she needed a stimulant? She'd say, very casually, "Charles, I'd forgotten. I need a stimulant. I'd like to see you—"

The doctor's voice came dimly: "No, don't tell her, nurse. They were so close, Mrs. Watt's and—Well, any severe shock might—"

"Yes," said the nurse, "I'll be careful. She seldom asks for a newspaper."

Lucy dropped the instrument. So Eleanor had died. Her oldest friend, dear Eleanor! But the knowledge brought only an abrupt, unhappy acceptance of the inevitable. For Eleanor had cancer, and Lucy knew that sooner or later... Death did not disturb her as it did some. It was so final, to Lucy a severance quite complete. After the first catch at your heart you did not attempt to fight facts. She, too, would slip one day into that soft oblivion where nothing hurt any more. It was the living you carried with you every hour of the day.

"Eleanor," she murmured, "goodbye!" and kissed the palm of her hand, a girlish gesture they had both used when parting.

When Dr. Morse and the nurse entered her hand was on the phone again.

"Telephoning?" he scolded, "I thought we ordered perfect quiet for you?"

"I want to see Charles."
His broad face grew concerned.
"I wouldn't call him, it will only

Mission Notes

The Altar Society of Our Lady of Carmel held its monthly meeting June 10 in Crespi Hall. The members present were Mrs. Joseph Hooper, Mrs. Mary Reardon, Mrs. Marguerite Despard, Mrs. William Coughlin, Mrs. F. Richard, Mrs. W. C. Louisell, Mrs. George Keck, Mrs. Mary Miller, Mrs. Elsie Martinez and Miss Micaela Martinez.

Mrs. Elsie Martinez opened the meeting with the prayer for peace. The salute to the flag was given and the members recited the pledge of allegiance. Mrs. Martinez then spoke of the preparations for the Feast of the Blessed Sacrament and a revival of the ancient custom of giving the Four Benedictions as it was given in the Mission at the time of Father Serra. She informed the meeting that the representative of the Women's Volunteer Corps had approached her with the purpose of recruiting members to help organize entertainments for the draftees. Suggestions were made in regard to the celebration of Peninsula Hospitality Day, Sunday, July 13 and members were requested to entertain as many of the soldiers as possible.

Mrs. Martinez also gave a report on the one day Retreat sponsored by the Legion of Mary. Thirty ladies from the parishes of Carmel, Monterey, Pacific Grove attended the Retreat and found the conferences of the Rev. Father Crowley, S. J. Retreatmaster, stimulating and instructive. She gave a resume of Father Crowley's talk on the problems of the day in which he discussed peace. He said that there was much talk of peace but that peace was not just a lull between conflicts but rather, as St. Augustine defined it, "peace is the tranquility of order" and that in human life, order could only be based upon Christ's teachings.

Mrs. Mary Reardon gave the business report and it was suggested that no further meetings of the Altar Society take place until after the holiday.

The Troupers of the Gold Coast have "joined the army behind the army" and are the first group to volunteer to raise funds for the United Service Organizations in helping to meet the Monterey Peninsula quota of $4000 for the U. S. O. fund. Under the Denny-Watrous management the Troupers will give a special performance of "The Drunkard" next Friday evening, June 28, at the First Theater in Monterey, from which all proceeds will be turned over to Frank Work who heads the committee for seeing that the Peninsula quota is filled. Mr. Work and Mr. Franklin Dixon head the Troupers Committee and intend to make this an outstanding affair sponsored by numerous patrons prominent locally in army, civil and social life. Tickets for this occasion are limited to the capacity of the First theater, which will only seat 180. Prices will be $2 and $1 and may be obtained at Staniford's. There will be no auctions or other requests for money from the stage.

This benefit of the Troupers is the only one of several means to help raise the $4000 for the U. S. O. program. John Cunningham has recently distributed 400 tickets throughout Carmel to sell at 50 cents each as chances on a drawing to be held July 15. Two hundred fifty dollars will be the first prize at the drawing with five additional prizes of $50. In this national campaign the U. S. O., through its 360 service units, will supply to members of the armed forces and defense workers: contact with the community, religious service, clubhouse accommodations, counsel and guidance, and educational and cultural services. As one of the main problems over the United States in connection with defense is the lack of home-like places for soldiers to go when off duty, the government will provide the necessary buildings and make the U. S. O. responsible for aid in operating the program. Service clubs where entertainment, games, meetings and social functions may be given and equipped with writing facilities, lounges, and sleeping accommodations will be the first to be established. In every community in the country this same drive is going on, not just in those communities located near an army fort, and each community is given the choice of how it wishes to raise its quota. To fill its $4000 quota the Monterey Peninsula committee has chosen the plan of selling tickets to a drawing with nice fat prizes, while other cities choose to raise the money by direct taxation.

The tickets for the drawing are circulating freely through Carmel and in case you haven't been approached, you may buy yours at the Pine Cone office.

GOLF STOOGE—

Golfers who are duffers at the game, never breaking 100, find Monterey Peninsula a veritable paradise for the sport. For here the same player can go a round in the 60s—with the aid of a stooze, old Dr. Fahrenheit.

RECREATIONAL PROGRAM AT SUNSET THIS SUMMER

As it's only been a few weeks since school closed, it may seem a bit too soon to start talking about classes again, but it won't be long before there'll be a lot of children who have been dying for vacation to come and who now find time lying pretty heavy on their hands. Since this always seems to happen, a fine summer recreational program under the auspices of the WPA is now in full swing at Sunset school to remedy this what'll-I-do-now feeling. And it sounds like a lot of fun.

Madame Marie Beygrau, in the shop, is working with several groups of children in sculpture and pottery work. There are also some adults working during the day.

In physical education Charles Cray and Anthony Lugone are leading a full program in the gym and on the field. Basketball, baseball, volleyball, football, handball, ping-pong and badminton will all be played at various times. All the boys and girls of Carmel who want to play are invited to join in the fun. The hours are from 10 to 4:

"THE DRUNKARD" PLAYING FIRST THEATER

Going into its third week-end and tenth performance, "The Drunkard" reopens tomorrow night in California's First Theater, Monterey, to play Friday and Saturday nights only. The Troupers of the Gold Coast, under the skilled direction of Ronald Telfer, are becoming more and more professional, carrying off the play and the riotous olio acts with a tempo and sure authority that is rarely seen in amateur groups.

The Carmel Chess Club, which has heretofore been meeting on Thursday evenings at the Legion Hall, will now meet on Wednesday evenings starting each week at 7:30.

Outward Bound to Open July 1st at Playhouse

"Outward Bound", that timeless play, touched with extraordinary imagination, will be presented for five nights at the Playhouse, commencing Tuesday, July 1. Produced by Carmel's own Stage Guild, under the direction of Edward Kuster, with an excellent cast, it promises to be an outstanding achievement of the local theater.

Aside from the stirring and quickening qualities of this play (which was revived last year in New York with immense success) it will be intensely interesting to see it put on by Carmelites, inspired to do as fine a job as they did with "Night Must Fall."

The mounting of the play is in the capable hands of John Bartlett, with stage management under the charge of Marie Short.

The cast is as follows: Scrubby, Andre French; Tom Prior, David Arnold; Ann, Anne Loos, alternating with Gladys Thompson; Henry, Malcolm Moulder; Rev. William Duke, Alec Merivale; Mrs. Cliveden-Banks, Anne Moulder; Mrs. Midget, Janet Anderson; Mr. Lingley, Edward Hinckley; Rev. Frank Thomson, Eugene Watson.

AN INTERESTING PERSON IN THIS TOWN—

At Asia Inn restaurant on Dolores street, where some of the best meals in Carmel are served, is an unusually bright and pleasing Chinese waiter named H. T. Eng. Many people go to the place because of the excellent service Eng gives them, and because they like him personally. Eng's mother, sister, wife and two children are in China, in a region that has been bombed heavily by the Japs. He hasn't heard from them for many months. But he's working for them in his modest way, and likewise for the people of his land. Already he has received substantial checks made out to Chinese War Relief from generous Carmelites, particularly from a kind lady here who does not wish her name mentioned. It means a lot to Eng when people help his cause.

Male Chorus to Sing at Big Sur Sunday

The Peninsula Male Chorus will sing its swan song beneath the stars and the redwoods Sunday evening at the Big Sur open air concert before disbanding for the summer when their director, Jaffrey Harris, will depart for the east to handle a summer symphony orchestra.

Plenty of music and fun is scheduled for Sunday when there will be a picnic for the members of the chorus and their families at the Big Sur in the afternoon prior to the evening concert. Guest artists with the chorus will be Rachel Morton (Mrs. Jaffrey Harris), soprano, and Miss Anne Barrows, contralto. Mrs. Donna Bennett will accompany the group.

Programs at the Big Sur open air park are regular Saturday and Sunday evening features.

HOLD YOUR HATS, HERE WE GO AGAIN!

This week the unique, the unpredictable Bill Bassett explodes his talent in a special supplement of "The Tide" over the hill, which, incidentally, dishes back to Dick Masten what he dished out to Bill when the Gazette was distributed liberally in Carmel post office boxes.

We're glad that Bill has a job. We've always liked him personally. And we're interested in this latest novelty, which emanates and gesticulates from and to Pacific Grove.

Yet it reminds us somehow of the story of the Kansas farmer, whose plough horse died, and who said philosophically, "God's will be done!" Then his barn burned down and with it all his other horses and his cattle, and his pigs and chickens died, and drought swept his land, and he said, "God's will be done!" And his house caught fire, too, and burned to the ground, and his eldest son went crazy and his youngest son fell down the well, and his wife ran away with the hired hand, and he said, "God's will be done!" And then, standing in his field in which no crops had grown that year, a cyclone suddenly arose and blew off his trousers, and he said, "God's will be done!" But, dear God, this is getting to be ridiculous!

ART FOR ART'S SAKE

There has been a misunderstanding in some quarters regarding the purpose of the drawing of paintings at Carmel Art Gallery on July 15th. The $2500 to be raised by sale of membership tickets is not required to save a failing institution. As a matter of fact the Gallery is in excellent financial condition; it has been operating regularly in the black; and the funds to be raised next month are to cover certain repairs and improvements and to balance a sinking fund that will guarantee more effective operation in the future.

A closer cooperation between Carmel business interests and the Art Association is urged, quite naturally, because the rapid growth of our community is introducing elements entirely ignorant of the significance of the Art Gallery. Newcomers to Carmel need to be told that our Art Gallery is a unique establishment, the only one of its kind in the country, having a show each month, without admission charge, and without subsidy of wealthy individuals outside.

The whole-hearted response of Carmel artists to the July 15th project is most encouraging. Paintings offered for the drawings are now on display, and everyone should go to the Gallery and look at them. They stand as evidence that our community is still an art center of which every Carmelite can be proud.

In the dark days which lie immediately ahead it is important that a consciousness of what the Art Gallery means to Carmel be constantly maintained. It would not only be a pity but a fatal blow to our community if our reputation as an art center vanished through public indifference.

STRIKE

By JANE MILLIS

It was late when Ken left the meeting that night. He was tired and troubled with the decision the union had reached. Picking up his denim jacket, he motioned to his friend and they started for home. The men were singing "For the Union Makes Us Strong" and the refrain buzzed in his head.

"It's a good song," he said to Mac when they had reached the quiet street. "But it won't help us win the strike. The company's got everything on its side. They're making double the profits they made last year but they won't budge an inch. We'll stop turning out navy destroyers, the papers will spread it from coast to coast, and public opinion will demand the government to step in and stop us from spiking the wheels of national defense. We're just sticking our necks out."

He lit a cigaret hurriedly, burning his fingers. "Damn," he cried.

"You're wrong, Ken," Mac said, as they turned the corner leading down a dark alley. "You haven't any faith in the union. You had better stick with us, go out on strike, and keep your mouth shut. We're within our rights, and what's more, we've got a chance to win. Look what it will mean to us."

"The strike will mean we'll lose our jobs," Ken said sullenly. "We're committing suicide, that's all."

JUNE ROSES

*In frozen stems, June roses lie concealed
Till swallows fly with winter on the wing.
Then from the chilling clod will be revealed
The tiny buds that wait the call of spring.
The icy clutch of bitter wind gives way
To summer zephyrs bringing happy hours,
As night's dark grave sends forth the dawn of day,
And blossoms break their crystal cups with flowers.*

*Then comes the crocus crowned with ruddy gold,
Announcing spring in song of mating birds
And lambs that leap to life in every fold
In joy of Maytime, all too gay for words.
Then from the frozen stems will be revealed
The hidden roses there, that were concealed.*

—MARIE TELLO PHILLIPS.

THERE IS A WORD

*There is a word that when once said will lift the eyelids of the dead;
will cause their silent ears to hear,
will trip their tongues, but not with fear.*

*Bitter and hot it burns its way through night, and brings them to the day.
it is transmuted into rain that cleanses every earthly stain,*

and from their narrow, rigid bed they rise, the Gabriel-heralded; awakened from their dream of sleep through which dark shadows seemed to creep.

*The silver cord grown taut and sweet,
the golden bowl renewed, complete;
smooth flesh upon the ivory bone,
and from the quiet lips a stone.*

—MARY WILLIS SHELburne

CALIFORNIA COLORS IN THE DAWN

*Long silk strands in a eucalyptus wood,
Pale pink mist where the barren orchard stood,
Tall cream spires of the yucca on the hill,
And laurel spilling silver with a gold bird's trill.*

*Clear flute tones from a mountain lilac limb,
Wood thrush notes in a sparkling morning hymn,
Fine jade wings where the honeysuckles lean,
And bleeding hearts of fuschias by a live oak screen.*

*Small blue stars like the eyes of baby girls,
Bright sun-cups holding wealth of rain-drop pearls,
Soft brown tints of a mother deer and fawn
Beside a canyon brooklet in the springtime dawn.*

—MONICA TYLER BROWN.

THOUGH I SWEEP AND SWEEP

*I swept my walk at the dawn of day
And I swept my walk at noon,
I swept my walk at three o'clock
And again by the light of the moon;
But a towhee worked as hard as I,
He scratched like a busy hen,
And every time I swept my walk
He scattered the leaves again.*

—JESSIE MAY HOOKER.

two-room flat, Ken couldn't forget the union song. "Solidarity, hell!" he muttered.

It was pitch dark in the hall, but fearing to arouse the landlady, they groped their way up three flights to their rooms. Unlocking the door, Ken switched on the light.

"All right, Mac, I'll keep quiet. But I'm telling you we're making a mistake. If we go out in the morning we'll get our heads smashed."

Nervously, Ken crushed his cigaret under his boot. Pulling on his pajamas, he dropped into the bed. He set the alarm for 4:30. At 5 they were due at the factory. Though he was dog-tired he couldn't sleep. He lay looking up at the dim irregular patterns the rain had made on the ceiling. He thought back on the last two years of his life.

At Stanford, Ken remembered, he had flunked out after playing around for two quarters. His father had told him he was through; he would have to manage for himself.

He had gotten a job in the cement business, lugging fifty-pound sacks eight hours a day. The work made him settle down, and he had tried to make good.

Then he recalled how restless he had gotten. He couldn't stand the routine and he missed the gay times with his old crowd. His father took him back and allowed him to go into California Extension. He worked fairly hard and received average grades. When he had made up his grade-points and was ready to enter the University on regular standing, he bolted.

All of a sudden Mac turned over, and raising himself on his elbow, interrupted Ken's train of thought.

"I've been thinking about tomorrow, Ken," he said. "Look here, you don't need to worry about getting hurt. I'll look out for you."

With a groan Ken leaned over. "That's not what's bothering me," he said. "I'm not a coward. I'll fight if I have to defend myself. But I don't think fighting will get us anywhere."

"I see," Mac muttered. "You'd have us sit quiet and do nothing. Don't you know that we have to fight for our rights?"

Shivering as with a chill, Ken fell back on his bed and pulled the covers high up under his chin. Lying there in the dark room he recalled the day he had left California and persuaded his father to put him through Boeing. His father, reluctantly, backed him again. He was going strong learning the engineering of airplane motors when the war scare swept the country.

He wavered. Only a fool or dare-devil would willingly learn to fly bombers, he decided. He told his father he wasn't cut out to be an aviator. After sinking $3000 into the best aeronautical school on the coast, his father fumed and stormed, called him an irresponsible wastrel, and told him to clear out for good.

He hadn't seen his family for three months now, but he had been doing fairly well. He remembered how long it had taken him to find his present job. He had started at the bottom as draft apprentice in the ship-building industry. Without university training it was slow going, but he had had some experience and they needed men badly.

If my luck had only held, he thought. Curse the union and its strike. They're a bunch of fools singing "solidarity" and talking about getting more pay. They don't know what they are in for. The odds are against them. They haven't got a chance at a time like this. They'll go out on strike tomorrow at 5:00, and picket the place. Someone will get out of hand, antagonize a strike-breaker, and there will be a fight. Someone will get killed or get his head bashed in. The leaders will be thrown in jail and may get stuck with a $5000 fine or 14 years in prison.

What's the answer for me, he asked himself. Shall I go out with them in the morning, knowing we'll get in trouble, or shall I turn scab?

With his mind in a turmoil, he jumped out of bed and walked to the window. He groped on the table for a cigaret. Lighting it, he leaned against the ledge and looked up at the sky. It was overcast but the moon was shining faintly through the clouds.

It's going to rain, he thought. This isn't the real me, living here in this hovel and sweating blood to earn my living. I was the play-boy, the son of a utility magnate, a gay, reckless spend-thrift. Now I belong to the "other half."

The storm broke. Ken left the window and stumbled back to his bed. He glanced over at Mac sleeping the deep and peaceful sleep of the tired.

I've got to get some rest, Ken thought. I can't

AND FEATURE ARTICLES

The Crowe's Nest

We saw an advertisement in The San Francisco Chronicle the other day that was for us completely nostalgia-packed. It started like this—"FOR RENT: THREE ROOMS AND A PATH." Shades of all our New Hampshire vacations!

From all the memories thus evoked one incident in particular stands out. It concerns one Jennie Rock, a New England spinster of uncertain age, with the dry sense of humor so typical of that region, who used to visit us every year at our summer cottage.

One summer our sister's passion for interior decoration was particularly troublesome and not content with repainting all the camp furniture she turned her attention to the little house in the woods at the end of OUR path.

As a surprise for us all she secretly procured yards of white oil cloth with large red polka dots thereon with which she proceeded to cover the exposed surfaces of the room. As a final touch she added a pleated and scalloped valance to the long-bench-like seat. Then, her labors ended, she established herself on the back porch where she could keep her eye on the path and waited tremulously to see who would be the first to view her handiwork.

Our guest was the first to visit the refurbished room.

"How did you like the new decorations?" our sister inquired as the visitor returned to the house.

There was an appreciable pause, then Jennie pursed her lips and replied, "Made me feel just like a jar of strawberry preserves!"

STOP, LOOK AWAY AND LISTEN

Have you ever observed—when the telephone rings,—
How the lady who knits all those strange woolen things,
And the boys who are splitting political hairs,
And the girls playing bridge with inimical glares,
And Junior absorbed in the day's comic strip,
And Sister involved with a skirt that won't zip,
And the folks who are reading those INTERESTING books
All stop in their tracks, and with far-away looks,
(Their minds at their ears as though hearing Caruso),
Pretend not to listen—but brazenly do so?

BRACE GRAY.

We are always eager to discover and call to the attention of our readers little things that we feel will help to make their lives more interesting and worthwhile.

This week we have come across a publication put on the market by C. A. Ready, 2149 West Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, Ill., that we feel it would be impossible to recommend too highly. It is entitled, CUPID'S MAIL, and bears the sub-heading, "A Social Magazine Most People Prefer." Although intended primarily to further correspondence between the lonely of heart of all ages it contains many items of peculiar interest, not the least of which is the poetry with which CUPID'S MAIL seeks to get its readers into the proper mood.

Simply in the hope that some of you may feel like subscribing to this extraordinarily interesting publication we reprint a poem from a recent issue:

DOES THIS MEAN YOU?

Do you yearn for the love of a woman,
For the touch of a kindly hand;
Long for the smile that is sunshine,
And a someone to understand?

Do you yearn in the long, long evenings
For a merry laugh near-by,
Then to feel a sweet face near you;
Wouldn't it brighten up your sky?

Just to fold that sweet one to you,
Feel the heart throb one-by-one,
Feel the warm cheek nestled closely
Wouldn't that lighten your cares a ton?

The author is a comparatively unknown poet—Rhoda Nova—for whom we unhesitatingly predict a brilliant future.

—LEE CROWE.

let myself crack. I've got to relax. He glanced at his watch. It was almost 3 o'clock. His eyes closed and he fell into a fitful, troubled sleep.

At 4:30 the alarm rang. Ken turned over, pounced on it, and smothered it under his pillow. Mac woke and, sitting up, swung his feet to the floor.

"No time to sleep now," he said. "Come on, we've got to go."

Ken muttered something incoherent, passed his hands over his eyes as though he were rubbing away a terrible dream, and slowly got up.

They were dressed and out the door in ten minutes. Reaching the street, Ken saw that the storm had passed and with the night had also gone the heavy fear that had weighed him down.

With a light step, he walked down the street with Mac into the gray dawn softly humming "For the Union Makes Us Strong."

New Books at the Library

Starting Monday and continuing through Friday, the many new books purchased for the boys and girls of Carmel will be on display in the Children's Room of the Harrison Memorial Library. They may be borrowed on Saturday, June 28.

These include picture books for the pre-school children, easy-reading for the first and second graders, stories about horses and dogs, a few mysteries, and a number of fiction for those of high school age. The latter group contains career books covering the fields of nursing, fire fighting, aviation, fashion designing, civil engineering, and that of being hostess in a hotel, train, ship and airliner.

Outstanding among these new books is "Finlandia, the Story of Sibelius", by Elliott Arnold. This is also the story of Finland and her people, which is inseparable from the life of her greatest man, the musician, Jean Sibelius.

FAMILY PORTRAIT APPEALING TO CHILDREN

Del Monte Summer Theater is inviting ministers from various churches on the peninsula, Sunday school children and their parents, to the 7 o'clock performances, Monday and Tuesday, of "Family Portrait," starring Judith Anderson. The Army will be on maneuvers during that period and few Fort Ord soldiers will be present. Miss Anderson says that she has many letters from children who saw the play in the East and they were all enthusiastic about it.

Madame Rach-Wolski

An Interview with the Fascinating Russian Palmist Spending the Summer at the Pine Inn

By JANE MILLIS

In a gaily embroidered yellow peasant dress with a large turquoise ring on her finger, the young Madame Ozelia Rach-Wolski predicts the future.

Besides being a palmist, she is an author, lecturer, poet, philosopher, and an authority on Indian culture. She considers the study of phychic phenomena a science. The lines in a hand are made by the conscious mind, she believes. The flexibility of a hand corresponds to the flexibility of the mind. "If the mind is not open," she said, "neither is the hand."

Her Childhood

Brought up in her grandfather's aristocratic home in Riga, on the Baltic Sea, in the latter days of the Tzar, Madame Rach-Wolski had, at the age of four, remarkable powers of clairvoyancy. Her father, a Russian liberal, was a scholar of Sanskrit, the ancient Assyrian writing. His young daughter, blindfolded, was able to read this writing and answer questions on it. "I must have read his mind," Madame Rach-Wolski explained.

"My father was afraid of this power," she said, "so he took me to London. There he engaged a palmist connected with Sir Oliver Lodge, the famous physicist, and brought him back with us to Riga to teach me."

When she was 15, the girl and her father came to Canada where her father, a doctor, lectured in German at McGill University. At 17, Madame Rach-Wolski studied English and journalism at the University of Chicago. Before she came to this country she had studied in France.

After leaving Chicago she went to Mexico and Yucatan where she interested herself in the Aztec civilization and the great Mayan religion.

Her interest in the Indian people next took her to the American Southwest, where she is lived for eight years.

In Carmel

She lived in Carmel last year, continuing her writing and has recently returned to spend the summer while her two children are at scout camps.

"Carmelites' hands definitely run to the dramatic," she said, sitting at her table in the Pine Inn lobby. "What we call the 'Apollon' line, representing ability in the arts, is apparent to a great extent."

"The three main lines in the hand, the head, life, and heart lines, reflect the mental organs", she went on. "We are born with these, but often they change during a lifetime. An exceptional person, however, has another line called the fate line. I have found several of these in Carmel."

"Fifteen years ago, a palmist was made a laughing stock but now it is accepted that the probe of the psychic has hardly begun. Take Stewart Edward White's latest book, 'The Unobstructed Universe', for example," she said. "It is a conversation of a man with his wife in the world beyond, a study of psychic phenomena which has been endorsed by the finest minds in the literary world."

Madame Rach-Wolski, foreteller of the future, is a highly educated woman with a deep insight into what is commonly thought unknowable.

For Carmel Beach Army Ambulance Ord Life Guards

Fort Ord is sending life guards to patrol our beach on week ends to help protect the hundreds of soldiers and civilians swimming in our surf on Saturdays and Sundays.

Besides this, Ord is contributing an army ambulance completely equipped and staffed with a competent crew to administer first aid. This ambulance is dispatched by the 7th Medical Battalion. And Carmel is certainly grateful for both life guards and ambulance. Both so much needed during the summer.

However, soldiers must—in spite of all these precautions—continue to be warned about the dangers of the rip tides operating off our shores. Army boys even yet do not seem to realize the menace of the undertow, how Carmel's handsome surf can play tricks on the very best of swimmers.

Take the friendly little item in the 17th Infantry's Weekly Bugle. This mentions how some soldiers got beyond their depth one day and had to be pulled out.

"Carmel beach is a very desirable and safe place to swim, but bathers should become familiar with some of the dropping off places before venturing too far out."

This considerate warning—well meant as it is—is far from emphatic enough.

Jolon Supplies Deadly Enemy for Mock War Games

One lieutenant died at Jolon the other day from a mortal wound between the eyes. A rattlesnake bit him while he slept.

A raging fever developed. Because the snake venom entered his system so near the brain there was very little hope from the start. The medical care given on the spot and later at the hospital could not save the officer.

Rattlesnakes are showing up everywhere around the Hunter Liggett Reservation. A subtly camouflaged enemy threatening both of the battling armies—the 7th Division from Fort Ord—III Army Corps—and the Fort Lewis IX Corps.

Army Times Sends SOS to Camps for Military Ideas

Civilians are sending in 100 ideas a working day to the National Inventors Council—shoestore clerks, housewives, farmhands—who have never laid eyes on a gun, a tank, a plane except in films. The Army and Navy are adopting many of these ideas.

How about soldiers who are right on the spot handling rifles, mortars, gun carriages, howitzers, tanks, planes, parachutes, etc., sending in their ideas, too? The boys everyday must see a lot of things they think could be improved on, made to work better some other way. So soldiers are being urged to get their ideas for improving weapons, army equipment, down on paper, and sent to the National Inventors Council.

It's not a question of inventing, but of improving. A few of the Thirty-five thousand men of the Fort Lewis IX Corps—3rd and 41st Divisions—waiting to launch an attack at the Hunter Liggett Reservation against the III Corps—of which Fort Ord 7th Division is a part. For weeks the northern troops have been getting ready down there at the old Hearst Ranch. . . . Today the 7th Division is off for Jolon to wage a big battle against the IX Corps. The mock warfare lasts until June 28, when the 7th Division will return to Fort Ord.

THE BOOKIES FACE ON THE BARROOM FLOOR

Of course it may be just another army yarn. But they said it was fact, no fiction. How a private was having a beer at a King City bar when a man in civilian clothes beside him, also ordering a beer, accidentally stepped on his toes.

The private flared up, mad. "Who the hell do you think you are, the mayor?" "No," came the answer in a tone as understanding as it was dignified, "The General"—and it was true. And he WAS General—U. S. Army).

things that now need improvement in our army was given in the Army Times.

Wanted:
1. A parachute to land safely from 50 to 100 feet above ground instead of 500 and 750 feet—which makes a jumper a vulnerable target.

2. A machine to cover troops landing on a hostile shore. While beaching their equipment they are helpless and unable to work their guns.

3. Better aircraft gun sights on a plane. The present ones take too long to adjust. Target planes have gone by before pilots are ready to fire.

4. Better anti-tank guns. The present ones are a copy of Germany's 1937 models. One is needed that will score one hit in four on a moving target and thus vitiate the menace of panzer divisions.

5. A really heavy tank. The 28-ton tank we now have is not to be sneezed at. But the Germans used 37-ton tanks to tear through Greece. To be sure a 40-tonner is being experimented on by the U. S. Army, but it has not yet been built.

6. More flexible gun carriages.
7. A good sound detector for airplanes.

Every enlisted man is begged to keep these things in mind. To turn into his officers anything occurring to him that might be an improvement.

Officers of 3rd Army Corps Headquarters Leave for Jolon in 23 Trailers Built of Junked Material

It was Lt. Col. Garnett H. Wilson's idea—and a very practical one—to implement the administrative force of the III Army Corps headquarters with a combination Rich Man, Poor Man . . . Doctor, Lawyer . . . Indian Chief . . .

It's a mutual discovery, this being thrown into the army together—rich and poor, professional men, mechanics, scientists, the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker, play boys. Each man coming to admit that the other one is not such an impossible guy as he had imagined. Black and yellow, red race and white—in the ranks together. Incidentally, the Fort Lewis outfit is proud of its Indian fighters in the IX Corps. They are convinced that in attacking Monterey's 7th Division at Jolon this week, their Indians on the warpath will make it an easy victory for the northern army.

Everywhere it's the old story of human beings finding the class-preferred as a friend—in the man rather than the man in the class. As is so often mistakenly supposed to be the only way of relationships in civilian life.

A very wealthy draftee at Ord is determined to live within his $21 a month. And for the seven months he has been doing it—not without difficulty.

Of course pay day for some is nothing to cheer about. One boy stood in line at attention waiting for his pay to be handed him. Minus authentic deductions it was finally handed to him—just $3.50 for the whole month.

By and large it's probably no exaggeration to say there is not a single boy at Ord who is not in better shape physically and in out-living and working quarters. (They are going to be the umpires during the Jolon war games).

Trailers—was the answer. So the boys of Co. C, 69th Quartermaster Battalion, built 23 trailers from good parts of condemned trucks and ambulances. At a cost of $50 per vehicle. Built by union labor they would have each cost $350.

These brand new mobile units are a duplex arrangement of military home and office. With 84 square feet of floor space and 6½ feet clearance between floor and ceiling.

Equipment comprises table, typewriter, telephone, locker, electric light, file cabinet, field desk, map frame—and built-in bunk.

Two extra trailers—kitchen and a refrigerator on wheels—advance units, arrived at Jolon ahead of time to have lunch all prepared for the caravan from the Presidio of Monterey with commissioned officers of III Army Corps Headquarters.

DAD PUTS THE BEE ON SON DURING FRISCO FURLOUGH

Up from Fort Ord for a few days of get-together with his father, a corporal from Pasadena had the surprise of his life. And his friends too, were amazed later when they asked about how much chiseling he had done with his fond parent.

"Chiseling, I should say not! As a matter of fact my father put the bee on me. Said he was short of cash, had paid for his ticket to Honolulu and so forth. How much do you want, Dad, I said. Oh, make it fifty. That will do all right."

A corporal gets $54 per month.

Judith Anderson Appears in Play About Christ's Family

Appearing for the first time in a summer stock company production, Judith Anderson, America's foremost dramatic actress, is taking the leading role in "Family Portrait" at Del Monte Summer Theater. This play, by Lenore Coffe and William Joyce Cowen, is a study of the family of Christ. Its treatment is non-canonical, though wholly sympathetic. Miss Anderson plays the Mother of Jesus.

When the play was first submitted to her, Miss Anderson said she hesitated to accept the part. The simplicity of the Mother of Jesus would be such a testing. But there was also Mary's warm humility for guidance. She found that she needed only to surrender to the part, and become a part of the Nazareth family.

For Miss Anderson, who has for years played neurotic women and just plain hussies, (remember her sinister housekeeper in the film, "Rebecca"), role represents a marked change of character. "I was never so terrified of anything as I was of this part," said the actress, "I didn't dare do it—I was afraid I wouldn't be accepted in it. But then I thought that with the world the way it is today, this kind of play was necessary. That's what gave me the nerve."

"And now I'm happy I decided to do it in New York and the opportunity to introduce it here on the Monterey peninsula is something I shall cherish always. If people, only for one hour, can get some goodness out of it, some peace, some comfort . . ."

She turned away from the mirror and faced the reporter.

"You see," she said, "I don't know how to express it—I don't believe that the theater should be a pulpit, but the world is in pain and there is solace in this play. . . All around you people are whispering the name of a man who is threatening humanity. I'm afraid it is worse than that. I'm afraid that evil itself is poised to run rampant again over the face of the earth."

"We, in our day, have known little but war. I was born in Australia. When I was a child all I heard about was the Boer War. Then, when I was in my teens, came the World War . . ."

"With things as they are today in Europe," went on the star, "I am grateful to be able to play a part that is an encouragement to people. There is an exaltation in 'Family Portrait'. People tell me that it makes them 'feel good'."

"During the New York engagement, one of the most gratifying features of all was the amount of mail I received from children—letters telling me how the story of the play brought them closer to their religions—gave them a better understanding of Christianity."

Supporting Miss Anderson in the Del Monte Theater presentation, which is being directed by Bernard Szold, are Mary Servoss, Peggy Converse, Henry Brandon, Philip Coolidge, Gwen Anderson, Fred Clark, Peter Brocco, Don Porter, Adelaide Kendall, Edmund Glover, Melbourne Ford, Rosemary Carver, William Nichols, Sharley Simpson, Lee Crowe, Lou Stratton, Rita Piazza, Kay Stewart, James Heisinger, James Jansyn, Robert Glickler, and Mary Baer.

"Family Portrait" will play to-night and every evening thereafter through Saturday, June 28.

Busy Fourth of July Week-end

Though the parades and the aquacades are all scheduled for "the other side of the hill," Carmel will make two important contributions to the enjoyment of thousands of visitors expected here for the Monterey Peninsula's traditional Fourth of July celebration.

Both are dramatic offerings and will provide widely divergent foot-light fare as well as presenting the village in its true colors as a center of art and culture.

Robinson Jeffers, Carmel's own poet-laureate, has, at least temporarily, belied his reputation as a "recluse" to actively assist in staging his "Tower Beyond Tragedy", which is to have its first professional performance in the beloved open air Forest theater, July 2 to 5.

Ted Kuster, who pioneered the little theater movement in Carmel and has done more than any other man to keep it alive, will present "Outward Bound" at the Carmel Playhouse, July 1 to 5.

"Tower Beyond Tragedy", will be presented under the auspices of Charles O'Neal, producer-manager of the Del Monte Summer Theater, with the distinguished actress, Miss Judith Anderson, in the role of Clytemnestra.

BROWNELL OFF AGAIN TO WIN MORE LAURELS

Bud Brownell had only a few days to visit his family in Carmel before he took off last Sunday night for Columbus, Ohio, where he will play with the Stanford golf team in the national inter-collegiate golf championships.

With Brownell's latest victory in mind (when he won the Northern California Amateur championship a few weeks back) the Indians figure that they have a pretty good chance to win the team championship which they captured back in '38 and '39. Besides helping to score points for the old home team, Bud also has a good opportunity to win the individual title at Columbus.

Carmel Beach--for Pleasure or Tragedy?

By PAUL CLEMMENSEN

Less than one-half mile off shore at the Carmel beach, the under water canyon formed by the Carmel river is more than 1800 feet deep. Deeper and deeper this canyon becomes, reaching a depth of 6093 feet a few miles out.

Nowhere else in the world does the ocean floor slope as abruptly as this, and nowhere else do the riptides swirl more treacherously. No other bathing beach is as dangerous. The steep formation of the ocean floor causes the waves to churn and boil so that the sands of the beach are constantly moved about by the current, forming a bar here, a hole there, the current sweeping the sands of a ledge today that yesterday appeared as a shallow wading pool.

Some might claim that the Carmel beach is not a bathing beach. But since visitors come from all over the world to visit this most beautiful of beaches, since the soft, clean sands invite to sunbathing, and the crystal clear water of the Pacific challenge to a dip, we can hardly call it anything else.

We repeat, this beach is dangerous, the most dangerous in the world. It is dangerous to swimmers who, knowingly or unknowingly risk their own lives every time they enter into the water, and to the rescuers who take reckless chances when tragedy is imminent.

If we do not inform every person who ever uses our beach of these dangers we are guilty of criminal neglect; if we deliberately prevent such information we may in a sense become parties to manslaughter.

This is not a matter for whimsy, it is a matter for plain speaking.

What then can we do?

Many individuals more interested in the welfare of their fellow men than in any commercial consideration have given a great deal of thought to this matter. M. J. Murphy has generously offered to supply a rope that may facilitate future rescues, others have suggested surfboards to be used for the same purpose. That is good. But it is claimed that surfboards are apt to end up in somebody's woodpile, and by the same token the rope may conceivably disappear later to reappear in the form of a swing if we persist in considering this whole question as a joking matter to be used when we have nothing else to talk about. Our city council, already awakening to the gravity of the matter, could readily pass an ordinance imposing extra heavy penalties on anyone whose regard for the safety of others may be so low as to remove vital lifesaving equipment.

Let it be agreed that ample equipment should be on hand at all times. Still it will be useless if help cannot reach anyone in distress speedily. From one of the members of our police force this suggestion has been made: That a watchtower be erected at some point at the foot of Ocean avenue from which a clear view may be had of the entire beach. A lookout equipped with powerful binoculars should be on duty during daylight. A loudspeaker could be used to warn those venturing out too far.

It might even be possible to make this watch duty voluntary. At a time like this when the whole nation is preparing for watchfulness it might be a worthwhile project for some home defense group to train for this purpose.

Is it too much to expect that we should be as interested in saving lives at home as we are in preparation for destruction abroad?

GORDON DAVIS TO DIRECT "TOWER BEYOND TRAGEDY"

Gordon Davis, who is to direct Judith Anderson in "Tower Beyond Tragedy" and who is head of the drama department at the University of Arizona, arrived in Carmel earlier in the week to stay for several weeks.

Forest Theater productions are an old story to Davis who played in one in his undergraduate days while a student at Stanford in 1915-20. After graduation he stayed on at Stanford as director of drama and did a great deal towards helping make that university's drama department as well known as it is.

With him is Emil Anis Haslin who is stopping with Davis at the "Old Actors Home" here in Carmel.

Work on Robinson Jeffers Play Goes Full Speed Ahead

There're really big things a brewin' for the Forest Theater production of Robinson Jeffers' "Tower Beyond Tragedy" which is to open July 2 and play through July 5 beneath the stars or beneath the fog, whatever the weatherman wills. Ring Master Kit Whitman called a conference last Monday to really start organizing things and to tell us of her plans. With the good roster of little volunteer helpers jumping through hoops to see to it that this play is really a success, we don't see how it could very well miss hitting the bull's eye.

Every angle is well taken care of by those who know their stuff, so that it looks like sure fire—this play by Carmel's Robinson Jeffers, put on in Carmel's unique Forest Theater which will star such a capable actress as Judith Anderson.

Norman Rock from Hollywood, art director from the Del Monte Summer Theater, will have charge of the settings, assisted by Dick Boone of Carmel. Michaela Martinez is in charge of the costumes while Jean Crouch Fulkerson will take care of the music. Marie Short is busy tearing around collecting actors for the mob scenes. George Karrer, master electrician from the Summer Theater, will manage the lighting. Lucian Scott is chairman of the out-of-town University publicity and Lynda Sargent is maestro of the Big Sur publicity. Mrs. Paul Flanders, Patty Elliott, Carol Tindell, Kit Whitman and Corum Jackson are members of the ticket committee. Jane Boone is in charge of the ushers and Polly Cornell of

ARTHUR HULL RECEIVES MASTER OF ARTS DEGREE

Arthur Hull, Sunset school principal, was one of those who took part in the graduation exercises held in the Frost Memorial Amphitheatre at Stanford University last Sunday to receive his Master of Arts degree in Education.

Following the exercises Mr. Hull left for Boston, where he will attend the National Education Association convention as the Monterey county representative. August 1 will find him back in Carmel after visiting New York, Washington, Chicago, Denver, Salt Lake City and Los Angeles.

Carmel is making arrangements for the programs.

Oriental Wood Block Exhibit Opens at Art Gallery on Monday

There is to be a Bertha Lum exhibition at the Carmel Art Gallery, opening next Monday, June 23 and running through two weeks. A writer, in describing Mrs. Lum's distinctive decorative style, writes:

"Bertha Lum, long known as the most distinguished western interpreter of the Orient, is essentially a great decorative artist. Mrs. Lum combines with her distinctive sense of color and design, a remarkable insight into the soul of the east. She knows its legends, its folk lore, its poetry, its philosophies and religions; she knows its customs and costumes, its habits and inhabitants."

"The symbolisms of the orient, its rituals, superstitions, and peculiarly mystical aura find stirring and imaginative expression in the art of Mrs. Lum who combines in extraordinary fashion, oriental technic and atmosphere with qualities of composition and perspective dear to the western eye."

Mrs. Lum uses oriental wood block methods revived by her and of which she is said to be the greatest known exponent. Her prints, delicately colored on thin, wiry, specially prepared rice paper of Japan, bearing names such as "Junks in the Inland Sea", "Rainy Twilight" and "Fox Women" have been shown in all the great galleries of the country and throughout the orient, and always hailed by the art critics as "exciting", "extraordinary", "delightful".

CARPENTERS BUSY—

It might look like a red hot nail driving contest between the two teams of carpenters on each corner of Dolores and Ocean, but it's just a bit of construction work for the benefit of the Corner Cupboard and Fortier's Drug Store under the respective eagle eyes of Mrs. Mary L. Dummage and Robert Leidig.

Mrs. Dummage is seeing to it that a small enlargement is made to her building which will give the Corner Cupboard more corners and more cupboards in which to store things away. Leidig is supervising the face lifting of what used to be Stella's and is putting in plenty of new show cases all along the Dolores side of the building so that Fortier's can move in next month. Sometime between July 1 and 15 Mr. Fortier and his establishment will cast off from their location next to where the old post office used to be and move down whenever their new headquarters recover from the Comstock hammer and nail blitzkrieg.

CHURCH OF THE WAYFARER

The soloist next Sunday morning at the Church of the Wayfarer will be a new one to Carmel. Mrs. T. R. Horn, contralto, wife of Major T. R. Horn, will sing, "In My House Are Many Mansions", by Jewell. She will be accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Ellen Rosell who will also play, "Sarabande", Bach; "Be Thou But Near", Bach; "Retrospection", Hogan, and "Song of Thanks", Diggle. The sermon by Dr. James E. Crowther will discuss the question, "How Rich Are You?" Visitors are cordially invited to this shrine of worship. The service is at 11 o'clock.

Two of America's funniest men, McGrath and Deeds, in the lavish musical comedy revue, MIDNIGHT IN MIAMI, at the State Theater in Monterey tomorrow.

Pick Up Your Knife and Fork

After a conspicuous absence of several weeks, Damo finally managed to come in and face a barrage of pleas for recipes from a bunch of office sitters who like nothing more than to listen to him reel off a lot of strange and wonderful concoctions and just let their mouths water away. Today Damo got right down to business, plunked himself down, and said, "Chicken." Just like that. So chicken it was.

Take a three or three and a half pound roaster, cut into eight pieces, season with salt and white pepper and fry in butter. When golden brown, remove, put in a casserole and cover with 1/2 glass of sherry and four medium-sized sliced tomatoes. Finish baking in an open oven for 45 minutes.

If you don't like it Damo says his name is mud.

Damo then said "Fish." Since there's a Friday in every week and Fridays and fish go hand in hand, he couldn't very well go wrong. And besides, fish is good every day, Friday or no, said he.

Take a fillet of flounder or a fillet of Rex sole, put it on a platter that will stand heat, sprinkle with a dash of salt and pepper, cover with 1/2 glass of dry wine and bake for 20 minutes. When the fillet originally became yours at the market you should have demanded that the head and bones go along, too. This is very important, for as your fish bakes, so does its head and bones boil. They have been covered with a pint of water and season with 1/2 bay leaf, 1/2 dozen pepper corns, a pinch of thyme and a teaspoon of salt and boil rapidly for 20 minutes. Then strain the broth, fold in two egg yolks and put in double boiler until thickened. Cover fish with this sauce, sprinkle with paprika and place in oven for another few minutes.

After the fish course Damo muttered something about a real economical dish—economical yet interesting. The result was a Maltese Cream dessert.

Put a quart of milk in a double boiler, add four tablespoons sugar, four teaspoons corn starch, four level teaspoons baking powder and the rind of one lemon cut in small pieces. Scald till hot, remove from

SWIMMING CLASSES AT PACIFIC GROVE POOL

All youngsters who want to discard their water wings and stop dog-paddling, now may learn to swim under American Red Cross-approved methods of swimming instruction at Pacific Grove's annual "learn to swim" program which began last Monday at the Grove city pool. The instruction will be directed by Wayne Greenfield, high school instructor and Walt Matteson, pool manager, both of whom are qualified Red Cross water safety instructors.

Classes will be held on week days, except Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, through Sept. 1. The daily schedule of classes is as follows: 8 o'clock, intermediate; 9 o'clock beginners; 10 o'clock, beginners and 11 o'clock, advanced.

There will be special examinations during the summer for beginning, intermediate and advanced swimmers and for junior and senior life-saving qualifications.

fire and fold in four beaten egg yolks. You already have a pound of stewed prunes ready and waiting, so cover up the prunes with the cream and bake for 15 minutes in oven.

Damo thought that this combination of chicken, fish and Maltese Cream should be enough to hold anyone for a while, so he picked up his hat and left.

Waltz-Williams Nuptials—

In the Copper Cup Room of the Hotel Del Monte, Monday evening, the lovely Miss Bessie Mae Waltz, daughter of Mrs. Lillian C. Waltz, was united in marriage to Capt. Richard G. Williams of the 32nd Infantry at Fort Ord. Before a floral background of pink roses, gladiolas and white lilies, Chaplain Kirtley, also of the 32nd Inf., performed the candlelight ceremony amidst a small group of intimate friends and relatives. The radiant bride wore her matron of honor, Mrs. Victor Sinclair's, white satin wedding dress, covered with a white redingote. A coronet of seed pearls held the shoulder-length bridal veil of net. A corsage of white orchids completed the perfect picture. Mrs. Sinclair was gowned in beige lace and her flowers consisted of talisman-colored carnation matching the wreath holding a brown net veil in place. An informal reception honored the young couple following the wedding.

After a few days' stay at Hotel Del Monte, Captain Williams, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Williams of Meridian, Miss., leaves for his new station, the bride remaining here until she is able to join him.

Vacation in the Berkshires—

Anne Rudderow, daughter of Mrs. E. Whitney White, is on her way for a glorious summer vacation in the east with her father, Dr. E. Douglas Rudderow of New York. Anne will stop off at Colorado Springs for a visit with relatives.

For three weeks Paul Warrington will be on vacation in Carmel, after completing his first year at Annapolis. Paul is the son of Mrs. Natalie Warrington.

Here over the week-end was Samuel Coblentz, naval architect at Mare Island. Coblentz was visiting his family, the George Coblentzes of San Antonio and Eighth.

Mrs. James Nelson was spending last week-end with the W. W. Wheelers in Pebble Beach. Mrs. Nelson came west to attend the graduation of her daughter, Virginia, from Scripps College.

Mrs. Koepf's Nephew—

Mrs. Guy Koepf's nephew, James Tillman, arrived (flying his own plane) Monday morning from Hollywood bound for Baltimore, Md., where his home is. He stopped off at the Koepf residence in the Carmel Woods for one day before continuing his trip East.

Spencer Kern (hear he's doing well in tennis) is home from Stanford University, on his summer vacation. Spencer's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kern of San Luis Road.

Betty Work in San Francisco—

She's taken an apartment on Russian Hill in San Francisco for several months, while she attends the Saline-Johnstone school for shorthand, typing and other such subjects.

Mrs. Glenn Herbert Chittenden, sister of Mrs. John Burr, arrived Tuesday by train to spend several weeks vacation in Carmel.

Mrs. Grace Howden and Margaret Lea, pianist and teacher in Salinas, left Wednesday on a motor-trip to Seattle, where Mrs. Howden's mother, Mrs. Carmen, makes her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wheldon motored to San Francisco early Tuesday morning to be there for several days.

Marie Short motored up to San Francisco early this week, on a shopping tour. She will return today.

Here from Hollywood over the week-end is Mrs. Sig Schlager, who will probably take in a few of the Summer Theater productions at Del Monte.

Miss Laura Dierssen's sister, Mrs. Karl Hoffman, is in Carmel this week. Mrs. Hoffman loves Carmel, and journeys down frequently from San Francisco.

New Yorkers in town are Miss Rena C. Kurtz and Miss Julia B. Smith of Rochester. They are stopping at the Pine Inn.

Miss Elizabeth Mosle of Santa Barbara is spending the long week-end with Dr. Helen A. Field in her home on the Point.

Miss Joan Clague, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clague of Carmel, who is a University of California graduate, is home for the summer months. In the fall she will study at San Jose State College for her kindergarten credentials. Miss Clague majored in education at the University.

Galt Bell left for Hollywood, after being a first nighter at "Family Portrait", Tuesday eve. Other out-of-towners who witnessed the Summer Theater's production were: Frank B. Tatum, and his sister of Los Angeles, John Hobart and Gilmour Brown, who has been playing in "Twelfth Night" with Lois Moran at the Greek Theater in Berkeley, were here for a short time, from San Francisco.

Wedded in Chapel—

Mrs. Ora C. Nelson was quietly married to Mr. Alan Nelson in a simple ceremony at the lovely Del Monte Chapel last Sunday afternoon. The Reverend Theodore Bell officiated. Only their families and a few intimate friends were present. Charming in light blue with matching accessories, and one white orchid, the bride was attended by Miss Helen Allegrini of Santa Cruz, and escorted by her brother-in-law, John J. Crow of San Antonio, Texas. Chosen as best man, was Mr. Harold Hill of San Francisco.

A reception was held at the bride's home on Scenic and Eighth in Carmel following the wedding. Among the guests were Mrs. Crow, who came with her husband from San Antonio, and Jimmie, nine-year-old son of the bride. When the honeymoon is over Mr. and Mrs. Nelson and young Jimmy will take an apartment in San Francisco. Mrs. Nelson is the daughter of Mrs. James Clendennen of San Antonio, Tex., and with her son has been a resident of Carmel for eight years. Mr. Nelson is the son of the late Professor James Nelson, who, 17 years ago, was affiliated with the economics department of the University of California, and of Mrs. Nelson of Oakland.

Plans for July 1 Wedding—

The engagement of Olive G. Wise to Lieut. Arnold B. Addlestone of Fort Ord, was recently announced. Plans have been made for a quiet wedding which will take place around July 1. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Graham of Berkeley. Lieut. Addlestone is the son of Mrs. Sarah Addlestone, and the brother of Howard, of San Francisco. The couple will make their home in Carmel.

Here from San Francisco is B. J. Vogel, a frequent visitor to our Peninsula.

Ivy Crane Wilson, publicity director for M. C. Levy, agents for such well known stars as Greer Garson and Paul Muni, arrived from Hollywood this week, with her son, Douglas Crane, to be the house guests of David Hanna, publicity director of the Summer Theater.

Mrs. Benjamin Johnson gave a tea Sunday, in her home on 10th and Camino Real, for a number of her friends.

Built Here in 1905—

Miss Elizabeth Chandler built a home here back in 1905; she left Carmel in 1926, and since then has returned only for short visits. She arrived here recently from San Francisco to spend three weeks in her beloved Carmel, and is stopping off at Sutton's.

Mrs. Eleanor Brucker and her son, Jerry, will spend the summer months in the Carmel Valley home of Mrs. F. B. Colmin's. Jerry will return to Stanford University in the fall.

The daughter of Alvin Beller, Micki Gayle Beller, flew from Honolulu and arrived in Carmel last Friday. A party was given at her father's studio on Tuesday afternoon. Among the little guests were Jean Southwell, Ruth Clark, Louise Harber, Janet Reel, Shirley Slipper, Patricia Timbers and Jennifer Lloyd. Games were played and cake and ice cream served. The family will travel south, visiting their friends, and will be gone about ten days. Micki will be here the rest of the summer.

"Alex" Spoehr to Wed—

Dr. Alexander Spoehr, known to Carmel as "Alex", is to be married in Winnetka, Ill., on Aug. 2, to Anne Harding. Alex is assistant curator of American archaeology and ethnology at the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago. He attended Sunset school and the Monterey Union High school. Alex then attended Stanford University where he received his A. B. and at the University of Chicago, where he received his Ph. D. Dr. and Mrs. H. A. Spoehr, his parents, recently sold their Carmel home, and are living in Palo Alto. Miss Harding is the daughter of Mrs. Charles Ford Harding, Jr., of Winnetka. Anne is also associated with the Field Museum.

Summer Theater's First Nighters

Before the lights dimmed and the curtain rose to a memorable performance of "Family Portrait", starring Judith Anderson, Wednesday night, a roster of the peninsula's most distinctive personages chatted, smiled and took their seats. Among them were Senator and Mrs. Edward Tickle and Miss Marguerite Tickle, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Stanley, the Walter Snooks, Robinson and Una Jeffers, General and Mrs. Joseph Stillwell, Noel Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Ashton Stanley, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Herron, Langston Hughes, Miss Clara Taft, Mrs. Glenn H. Chittenden, Edward Colby, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Crocker, Mrs. J. Nagle and her young daughter, Mrs. Ralph Coote, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Flavin, Mrs. Vera Peck Millis, Mr. and Mrs. Byington Ford, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bunn, Dr. and Mrs. Marshall Carter, Mrs. Howard Veit, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Eyre, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dougherty, Mr. and Mrs. John O'Shea, Mrs. Susan M. Porter, Colonel and Mrs. Rush Wallace, Colonel and Mrs. Jens A. Doe, Mr. and Mrs. John Burr, Miss Patricia Wendell and Albert Burr, Miss Mary Burgers and Mrs. Ernest Kayser, Mrs. Francis McComas, Mrs. Wanda Leslie, Major and Mrs. Milo Matteson, Mrs. Stanton Babcock, Miss Frances Baker, Mrs. Carr Thatcher, Mrs. Wellington Clark, Mrs. J. M. Williams, Frank Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stanton, Miss Ann Houston, sister of Walter Houston of movie fame, Mrs. John Clay, the S. M. Spaldings of Santa Barbara, Dorothy Nichols, who is on the drama staff of the San Francisco Chronicle, Beth Ingalls, the Harold Macks, the Galt Bells, the Stuart Haldorns, Mrs. Frederick Calkins and many others.

John Charles Thomas 1st Nighter

A throng of first nighters sailed back stage to Judith Anderson's dressing room, after the curtain was rung down at the Summer Theater's gala production of "Family Portrait", last Wednesday night. Among them, himself no less renowned, was John Charles Thomas, beloved baritone of America, who motored down from San Francisco after playing in "Chocolate Soldier." Hilda Vaughan, who will play in "Tower Beyond Tragedy", and just recently arrived here, was also to be seen, along with the Robinson Jeffers, not to mention half of the Army from Ord.

Cellist Here—

Mischa Schneider and his daughter, Natasha, are stopping at the Peter Pan Lodge for a week before Mr. Schneider joins the Budapest Quartet at Mills College, of which he is the cellist.

Reports from Anna Grant Dall say she has had splendid success in Bellingham, Wash., with her music, and now that school is out, she will probably meander down this way for the summer.

Mrs. Ramsey Campbell, wife of Colonel Campbell of Ord, arrived in Carmel and is staying at the Peter Pan Lodge.

Expected home on Monday is Mrs. F. A. Ingalls, who will arrive by train from Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Jaffray Harris were recently in San Francisco to attend "The Chocolate Soldier", with John Charles Thomas playing the lead. The Harrises are close friends of Mr. Thomas, and joined him after the show for a chat.

Mrs. E. T. Martin (Marcella) left for the city Tuesday afternoon, for a three-day sojourn.

Melvyn Douglas and his wife will arrive in town next week to see Judith Anderson in "Family Portrait" and "Tower Beyond Tragedy." They will also get a little sunshine for themselves while here.

Harry Partch Can't Resist Carmel

Harry Partch, experimenter in music, has returned to Carmel to spend the summer. Harry was here several months back, and made headlines with his amazing musical invention, his reed organ.

The Carmel Point home of the Elliotts was the scene of a jolly barn party last Saturday night, given for Mary Jean Elliott, by her sister, Patty Lou. The living-room was transformed into a barn with hay, and there was even an old scarecrow to add to the gayety.

Members of La Estrella will have a pot-luck luncheon in the Carmel Valley today, at Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Schulte's ranch home. Luncheon will be served at 1:30 p. m. and dessert will be served by the hostess committee.

Frank Wickman left his Highland's home last Monday for Marsh Field in Oregon. Mr. Wickman motored up, and will return in about three weeks.

Bob and Florence Cochran, accompanied by Donnan Jeffers, Mitzi Eaton and Mrs. Paul Tullius drove over to San Luis Obispo last Tuesday to promote the play they are doing at Ord, called "Tarnation", written by Mitzi. The play is going famously at the Fort, and they report that they will bring it to Carmel soon. (Purely for laughs).

Mrs. Tullius Entertains—

Mrs. Paul E. Tullius entertained two house guests last week at her home on Monte Verde and Santa Lucia. The two young vacationers were Miss Suzanne Winterburn, who drove down Monday from San Francisco with young Vincent La Berge, recently graduated from San Jose State College. Miss Winterburn is majoring in drama at the University of California.

Going, Going, Gone—

For the past few days the Greenan household was bustling with plans for the week and last-minute barbecues, before the whole family picked up and took week-end trips to all different points. Owen and Jimmie hied themselves off to San Francisco to see their father and to take in the ice follies, Maeve and her house guest, Che Moody, along with Ann Whitman, drove down to Los Angeles Tuesday morning to meet Che's brother, and Mrs. Greenan motored to the city with Mrs. Rene McDonald, Wednesday. At present there is no one in the big house overlooking the Mission, and all has quieted down.

We Were Dizzy After Business Assn. Dinner

too blind, too slow to do themselves.)

Again Corum Jackson spoke, this time in acid denunciation of the San Francisco News, which had published an article insisting we had no available rental accommodations in Carmel. "There's plenty of room to be had here," he said, "and I'm going to write the editor of the News and demand a retraction." The fact is, prices are high in Carmel for anything available, and that thought may be floating around the News' office.

Up jumped buoyant John Cunningham with his problem of a drawing for United Service Organization. He is trying to dispose of tickets for this drawing (fifty cents a head, with chances of winning $250 or a smaller prize) and, not being a matter connected with his Art Institute, which would be something directly up his alley, it tweaked him, and he repeated: "You've just got to take these tickets off my hands!" in such a persuasive manner that resistance seemed impossible.

Then Miss Dene Denny, also persuasive, talked about the great advantages to our community in the Bach Festival, shortly to be held for the seventh time. Folders describing it were at each place, and, though it wasn't mentioned, many who were present thought the photograph on the cover by Edward Weston made a better showing than the front page of the Business Association's booklet on Carmel.

Bert Heron reminded everyone of his Shakespeare Festival at "his" Forest Theater, to be held early in August, with Hamlet on the 1st, 2nd and 3rd, The Merry Wives of Windsor on the 8th, 9th and 10th. And he introduced George Wilson, who will direct the latter production, and who, with his attractive wife, is visiting Carmel for the summer.

Paul Dougherty rose at last and told about what the Art Gallery, "a free gift from the artists of this community" really meant to Carmel. Perhaps it was fitting that the last word of the evening should be spoken on behalf of a non-commercial activity—the graphic and plastic arts—about which Carmel's reputation has been built. And if the arguments set forth by the great marine painter were gently flavored by reference to the July 15 drawing (in which a lucky person might win a painting, if he held a five dollar, one-year membership in the Carmel Art Association) they were something which every citizen might take to heart.

Paul Whitman added that the 100 paintings offered freely and generously by Carmel artists, were now on display at the Gallery, and advised everyone to go up and see them.

Able chairman of the meeting, in the absence of Capt. Shelburn Robison, was Harold Nielsen, who introduced each speaker with a boost and exhorted him afterward with a promise of support.

Camilla Daniels read the minutes at the beginning of the meeting with a flourish, later gave returns on the city hall poll—indicating we might not have a city hall for some time—received congratulations on her writing of the Carmel booklet, 20,000 copies of which will be spread to publicize Carmel. Mrs. Mabel C. Sampson was present and spoke briefly of Bundles for Britain.

Conspicuously absent, considering the nature of the occasion and the many projects discussed, was Edward Kuster.

OUR ARMY

By ELEANOR MINTON JAMES

Rich Man, Poor Man . . . Doctor, Hollywood Stars—
Lawyer . . . Indian Chief . . .

look than when the army took him.

What a break the army really is in one way for boys of this generation. Nothing but men. A womanless education in community life which men today are seldom privileged to enjoy anywhere—school, home, college, business—since our American civilization is on the over-feminized side.

WHEN THE HOUR STRIKES BROGUES TURN INTO ARMY SHOES—OR ELSE

Not Cinderella and the glass slippers. But Cinderellus, the selectee, changing his polished brogues or natty saddle backs for becoming heavy army boots. He has to leave the party no matter how good it is, on the stroke of the hour. Especially when he has to get all the way to King City or Jolon, he can take no chances. Some of the boys leave their civvies at Carmel homes. So while in town they can look just like anyone else. Forget all about the army.

Until the bell tolls they can be unmindful of the uniforms they have to scramble into at the very last moment to get back to camp. A masculine version of the Cinderella quick-change act. And it's funny the way the girls fuss about the dead-line hour for their men! After all, they can afford to be generous, take a lot of pains about the soldiers toeing the mark. For every girl is a queen these days. Noblesse oblige.

DOUBLE REACTION OF FT. LEWIS MAN IN YE OLDE SWIMMIN' HOLE AT JOLON

It's very shallow, the San Antonio river, where the soldiers at Jolon take their baths. But the engineers have dug a hole for swimming—shoulder high. Stripped to the altogether, the boys can do a little swimming. Motorists passing on the highway above wave. Not minding the male nudity in the least. They're soldiers—defenders of our country. At any other time it would mean arrest.

Well, one soldier took off everything except his expensive wrist watch, which he forgot. Standing on the beach some distance away, his buddies noticed this and yelled, gesticulated. Snapped into violent pantomime, pointing to their wrists.

He got the idea. Spluttering about in the water he raised his arm, looked at his watch and yelled back:

"Two o'clock! Got another hour yet."

Then he plunged under for some more under water stuff. Suddenly coming up to the surface, it struck him, "Holy cow!" he shouted, "my watch!"

David Niven, Hollywood star of so many aviation films, is now a major in the R. A. F. He heads a squadron of defense troops stationed on the English coast opposite France. In a recent letter he mentioned leading a squadron out to round up the Germans who had parachuted to safety from 20 invading bombing planes knocked down directly over his sector the night before.

Two soldiers, revellers in the hoosegow—not Monterey, but Fort Lewis—were pretty pleased when through the bars they gradually brought into focus their own lieutenant, approaching. They called out rowdily in shame-on-you glee, "Oh, Breedlove—you in here, too!"

The lieutenant had merely come to secure the release of the soldier merry-makers.

"We're at your service because we know you're at our service." This is how George Jessel—acting with Jack Benny as master of ceremonies—put it. The reason for the presence of so many high ranking stars there in Fort Ord's outdoor amphitheater Sunday afternoon.

The free performance by a large group of Hollywood actors and actresses was a big success. Every soldier was able to see and hear without any difficulty no matter where he was sitting. So as Jimmy Costello said—"none of them left to read a good book, as has happened during shows in other camps."

The all-military audience was enthusiastic about every act of the revue. So the Hollywood film celebrities were foiled in their effort to find out just what soldiers really liked best in shows.

Among those present on the Fort Ord stage were: Mary Livingstone, the Ritz Brothers, Rochester, Claudette Colbert, Virginia O'Brien, Marlene Dietrich, Burns and Allen, the Nicholas Brothers, Carol Landis, Joan Blondell and Dick Powell.

OH! WELL ONE MUST BE KIND TO OUR ARMY

The Fort Ord soldier had not seen her since he used to come here for summer vacations back in college days. But he gave her a ring on arriving at Ord. She'd remember him all right.

And she did, but added a little thoughtfully:

"Are you one of those privates?"

"Yes, I am," said the boy friend of yesteryear, pridefully, too.

"Well, come on up—anyway."

Depot troops stationed at King City a few inches from the railroad tracks, have their nights punctuated by S. P. trains roaring by. The ground vibrating, rocks them violently in their pup tents. But they are being very well treated. Getting so much turkey they are actually yelling for army beans. Reveille comes any old time—just when the lieutenant happens to open his peepers. It's hot down there. Even the ground squirrels carry canteens. Yes, we know this is an old one.

A break means the few minutes during each hour when troops on the march may rest. One 186th Infantryman of the IX Corps was voted the company spokesman. He could put such an eloquent throb in his voice when he'd sing out—giving it a histrionic tremor—"Give us a break, captain." This has come to be his regular job.

The very nicest current rumor—that a 10-day furlough is coming up after the Jolon maneuvers.

TAKE IT EASY, BOYS, CUT SPEED OF ARMY VEHICLES DOWN A BIT

We know there has been a minimum of accidents and traffic casualties down at Jolon. With more than 35,000 soldiers in the vicinity the army record is to be marvelled at.

But—just the same it looks to a civilian in a coupe—and not the sissie variety, either—that army cars, all kinds, go pretty fast all the time, everywhere. A civilian car seems a helpless midget when elephantine army vehicles come zooming along.

Good drivers, the army boys, yes. But too much speed.

"SALUTE 50 TIMES" ORDER HAS A NASTY CATCH TO IT

Lieutenants are supposed to feel their oats where rank is concerned. Much more than officers higher in command.

A private at Jolon, turning away, managed to avoid saluting a lieutenant. The officer did not like it at all and called him to account.

"Well, see that you salute me every time you see me. And right now you can salute 50 times."

The private was starting his 50 salutes when a major came along and wanted to know what was going on. The lieutenants explained.

"That's all right," he major said, "but you seem to have forgotten that an officer must return every salute."

So the private felt, but did not show, considerable satisfaction. The 50 salutes never were finished under the new ruling.

The soldier's good old alibi:

"Can't. I'll be away on maneuvers."

We have checked on several of these maneuvers given by draftees as a police 'out' from doing socially what they preferred not to (where relatives and prosaic gatherings were concerned) and found them mythical maneuvers.

ALL SAINTS CHURCH

Next Sunday, 8 a. m., the Service of the Holy Communion. At 9:30 Children's Church with story-message by the Rector. At 11 a. m. the Service of Morning Prayer, with sermon-message by the Rector, Rev. DIET: 1001?'s

By DR. R. A. KOCHER

WHAT ARE FATS? WHAT PART DO FATS PLAY IN THE DIET?

The chief sources of fat for the normal diet are milk, eggs and the flesh of animals. A further source of fats is vegetable oil which occurs in plant seeds, in nuts, olives, and in lesser amounts in most vegetables. Chemically, fats are more complex than carbohydrates, although they contain the same elements, carbon, hydrogen and oxygen. They can be formed in the body from carbohydrates of the food and the body stores of fat are usually formed in greater part from this source than from fats in the food.

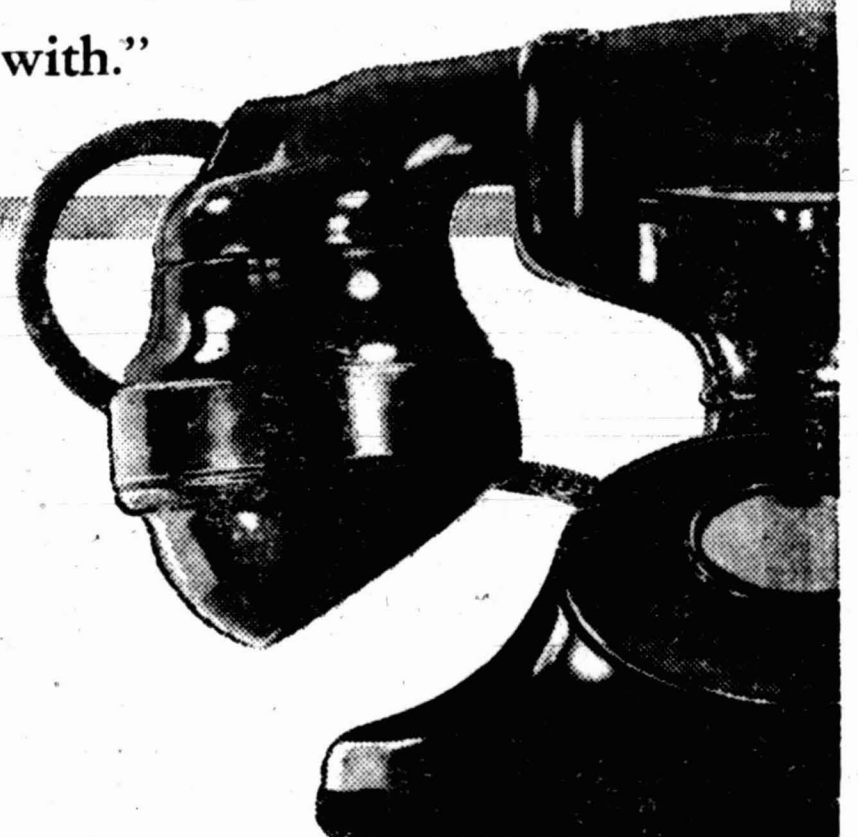

The proportion of fats to carbohydrates in the diet may vary considerably with no apparent ill effects, but in general from one sixth to an eighth of the total bulk of the diet should consist of fats. In round numbers, about 80 to 100 grams. They are a more concentrated form of energy food than either carbohydrates or proteins, yielding 9 calories per gram—more than twice that for the former. Fats more easily upset the digestion if taken in excess than carbohydrates, although when taken in moderate amounts they add palatability to the diet—as in sauces and gravies. The fats are not as quickly available for energy as the carbohydrates and cannot be completely burned in the body without carbohydrates. If carbohydrates are kept out of the diet with fats and proteins remaining the fats burn incompletely leaving their partly oxidized products to accumulate in the tissues or be excreted by the kidneys and lungs. As these intermediate products are acid (the so-called ketone bodies) their accumulation in the blood and tissues causes the condition known as acidosis. This condition frequently occurs in diabetes because of the lack of insulin to aid in the oxydization of glucose. We have a saying: "Fats burn in the fires of carbohydrates." If carbohydrates are not being burned, either because of absence from the diet from lack of insulin, acidosis results from incomplete oxydization of fats.

According to Capt. Shelburn Robison, the village committee for national defense, which is part of the Monterey County Volunteer Service Bureau for National Defense, has turned over its hospitality branch to the Peninsula Women's Volunteer Corps.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS
(advertisement)

1. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Board of Trustees of Carmel Unified School District, Carmel, Monterey County, California, will receive bids for the furnishing of all labor, materials, transportation and service for the furnishing and erecting of all structural steel work for a gymnasium building, Cafeteria building and shop building, at Carmel, Monterey County, California.
2. Each bid to be in accordance with plans and specifications now on file with the Architects, FRANKLIN & KUMP, 202 T. W. Patterson Building, Fresno, California, where same may be examined and copies obtained upon deposit of $25.00 per set, which deposit will be refunded upon the return of such copies in good condition within five days after the bids are opened.
3. Bidders are hereby notified that pursuant to the Statutes of the State of California, or local law thereto applicable, the Board of Trustees of Carmel Unified School District, has ascertained the general prevailing rate of per diem wages and rates for legal holidays and overtime work in the locality in which this work is to be performed, for each craft or type of workman or mechanic needed to execute the contract, which will be awarded the successful bidder.
4. The prevailing rates so determined are as follows:

Class of Work	Hours Per Diem	Wage Per Hour	Wage Per Diem
Labor, common.....	8	.62 1/2	$ 5.00
Hoisting engineer (1 drum)...	8	1.37 1/2	11.00
Hoisting engineer (2 drum)...	8	1.37 1/2	11.00
Workers Structural Iron.....	8	1.50	12.00
Painters	8	1.12 1/2	9.00
Truck Drivers	8	.85	6.80

5. All other trades not hereinabove mentioned to receive wage prescribed for that particular craft or type of workman.
6. All labor to receive time and one-half for overtime, double time on holidays, unless otherwise specified. The hourly wage prescribed hereinabove is the per diem rate divided by the aforementioned number of hours constituting a working day.

7. Each bid shall be made on a form to be obtained at the office of the Architects, FRANKLIN & KUMP, 202 T. W. Patterson Building, Fresno, California, and must be accompanied by a certified or cashier's check or bid bond for ten percent of the amount bid, made payable to the order of the Board of Trustees of the Carmel Unified School District and shall be sealed and filed with the Clerk of the Board, Hugh W. Comstock, Carmel, California, on or before the 23rd day of June, 1941, at 7:30 P. M., and will be opened in public at or about 7:30 P. M. of that day in the office of the school, Carmel, Monterey County, California.

8. The above mentioned check or bond shall be given as a guarantee that the bidder will enter into a contract if awarded the work, and will be declared forfeited if the successful bidder refuses to enter into said contract after being requested to do so by the Board of Trustees of Carmel Unified School District.
9. The successful bidder will be required to furnish a labor and material bond in the amount equal to 50% of the contract price and a faithful performance bond in an amount equal to 100% of the contract price, said bonds to be secured from a surety company satisfactory to the Board of Trustees, Carmel Unified School District. A list of such surety companies is on file in the office of the Architects.

10. The Board of Trustees, Carmel Unified School District, reserves the right to reject any and all bids and/or waive any irregularity in any bid received. Unless otherwise required by law, no bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of thirty (30) days after the date set for the opening thereof.

Dated June 6, 1941.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"Is the Universe, including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday, June 22, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The Golden Text will be: "The Lord is a great God, and a great King above all gods. In his hand are the deep places of the earth: the strength of the hills is his also" (Ps. 95: 3, 4). Other Bible citations will include: "And in the synagogue there was a man, which had a spirit of an unclean devil, and cried out with a loud voice, . . . And Jesus rebuked him, saying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him. And when the devil had thrown him in the midst, he came out of him, and hurt him not" (Luke 4: 33, 35).

The Lesson-Sermon will also include the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Science not only reveals the origin of all disease as mental, but it also declares that all disease is cured by divine Mind. . . . As mortal mind is the husbandman of error, it should be taught to do the body no harm and to uproot its false sowing" (pp. 169, 180).

Shorthand Instruction
Starts at P. G. Monday

A very fine opportunity for girls wishing to learn shorthand is being offered at the Pacific Grove High School summer session under the instruction of Mrs. Alice deRiemer, starting next Monday morning at 8 o'clock. It will be a course in Gregg shorthand which will include both elementary and advanced theory and dictation, and an intensive review of the principles of this subject.

Classes will be held each Monday through Friday from 8 until 12, starting June 23 and ending Aug. 15. College entrance credit will be given for the course, however it's not limited just to students, as all adults who are interested are welcome. Mrs. deRiemer is instructor of shorthand and typing in the Carmel Adult School.

THE STRANGE MAN
A SHORT STORY

upset you. You can't afford—" "You think he'll refuse?" she chided.

"Either way the emotional strain is too great. If he does come, or if—he can't."

"Oh, he will come!" she said with calm assurance. "If I had called him long ago . . ." She could see Charles rushing to her at any moment of these last horrible eons. Time did not wipe out three decades together. Why had she not telephoned? The answer might seem silly to others: he had only taken a longer trip, a passing interlude. He was part of her life so long as both lived.

"Wait until you're stronger," Dr. Morse advised seriously.

"I've waited too long," and she touched the receiver.

"Hold on! I'll call him, then." "No," she began to dial firmly.

"I won't have him worried by a doctor calling. He knows I have not been well, but he must not think it's too serious."

Dr. Morse shrugged in disapproval.

"Mr. Charles Parrish, please." Her hand trembled visibly.

"Charles? It's Lucy—" her tone was acrefully casual, with a thin under current of excitement. "Charles, dear—I need to see you—like the very devil. Can you come out?"

"Why—" the reply was startled, hesitant. Then slowly, "I guess I can make it. Within the hour."

Lucy fell back on a pillow, her slightly flushed face smooth and relieved.

"He's coming! Nurse, do something to my hair, quickly! Make me at least presentable! A touch of rouge, I think." She gave a little laugh. "Doctor, it's just the stimulant you wanted, don't you see?" Charles' voice had been queer, not kind and happy as she remembered: a bit strained and harsh? But she had no time to think as the nurse deftly arranged her gray hair to frame the tired but triumphant face.

Minutes dragged, 20 of them ticked away as if to prove that time had not stopped.

The phone rang. Knowing it could not be important, she nodded. Dr. Morse held the receiver close.

"Yes," he said flatly, "yes, I see. Just a minute, please—" He turned to Lucy, who fumbled with a strand of unruly hair before a tiny mirror. "It's Charles. He must go out of town. Do you want to speak with him?"

Her eyes closed, the mirror slipped from relaxed fingers.

"No," she breathed, "No, it's all right." Years of wasted longing shattered, roared away like an avalanche set loose by dynamite. She felt exhausted to the depths of being. Then from somewhere emerged a spark of her old wry humor, weak yet incredibly wise. How amazingly blind she had been! This man she had yearned for no longer existed. She had called to someone else, to the stranger he had become. She could not know how long ago it had happened. And suddenly she was free of the old pain. For the Charles she knew was dead!

"I'll rest awhile," and she smiled inwardly at Dr. Morse's puzzled anxiety. "Then get me something to eat. I shall be desperately hungry."

The Business Association expressed thanks to those who helped to get out the post card ballots: Clay Otto, Mrs. Weaver Kitchen, Wick Parsons, Florinda Holm and Mary Bigland.

To the council, as to the citizen voters, the city hall is a dead issue, or something equally unexciting. To The Pine Cone nothing is so rational as an acceptance of facts: the city hall issue is dead.

But long live the jail! Editorially and otherwise this newspaper has repeatedly stressed the necessity of a Carmel jail. As a friend of ours holds forth: "I like nothing better than to change what other people choose to call facts—", but in this case the one answer is to face the truth that Carmel's peaceful boundaries are being invaded by elements undesirable—and a jail is definitely needed.

Let's forget the city hall. But, for the goodness of Carmel's sake, let us take appropriate action on the jail question—NOW!

This afternoon at 5 o'clock the council meets for the first reading of an ordinance to fix the annual tax rate. We hope this will cover the cost of a jail.

tion that was relatively in keeping with the key of the play, but I have a bone to pick with the cast on their bizarre choice of costume. This applies more specifically to the men, who looked something like a cross between a modern hill-billy and a San Francisco card sharp, circa 1853. The corduroy was in keeping, being a traditional Jewish cloth, but the mode of apparel left something to be hoped for on the part of the imagination. I had no desire to see Appius Hadrian stomp in, in full dress Roman regalia but I believe pants (per se) are a fairly recent invention and with a little practice I imagine the clan could make out without undue exposure if furnished with a few yards of the right kind of dry goods. But for heaven's sake, gentlemen, I entreat you. Dispose of those five-gallon hats!

As for the emasculated sound effects, the less said the better. If what I heard was in any way an example of the stentorian trumpets that marshaled Caesar's legions, I'm willing to believe that Gibbon lived in vain and the whole Roman Empire was a huge, if ghastly hoax.

The truth of the matter is that the play is completely divorced

Gentleman from Alameda Remarks About Our Building

Under a heading "And in Carmel" the following letter, of interest to Carmel builders, appeared in a recent issue of The San Francisco News:

EDITOR: Enlightened public opinion should be a guiding factor in the constant development of a true democracy.

Berkeley Moynihan, famous British surgeon, said: "An ideal may not be attained but it must be pursued."

A recent visit to that mecca for lovers of beauty, Carmel, gave us a shock! Two one-story frame apartment buildings, under construction in the center of town, seemed to us to violate many sound laws of construction and sane planning.

Placed back to back, they are separated by a long slot, 26 inches in width, actual measurement stud to stud. This slot masquerades as a light and vent shaft for dressing rooms and bath rooms on both sides. Installed windows, in both from claptrap and the lines are so direct and simple that one loses sight of the fact that the whole thing is in the realm of make-believe. From Mary's busy entrance, which is the beginning of the play to the nostalgic last line, "I don't want him to be forgotten", which is also Mary's, there is a simplicity and lack of sophistication that has in it all the homeliness and durability of all the "average" families from that time to this.

Of the supporting cast I would like to pick out Henry Brandon whose portrayal of Judas Iscariot maintained just the right nuance of color to depict his vacillating character: Mary Servoss, who gave us an intelligent portrayal of Mary's sister, and Philip Coolidge, who made Jesus' brother, James, a sympathetic zealot who could condemn and still forgive. No one in the cast was negative and for that reason the play came off a resounding success.

Don Porter, who I considered the best thing in "The Hunters", outside of Gwen Anderson, was a bit too impulsive at times as one of the older brothers, but the transition from his last robust role to the present one of comparative sufferance is a severe task and I have an idea that before another curtain rolls around he'll have taken care to temper his lines somewhat.

To say that Miss Anderson carried the show is not to underestimate the genuine abilities of the rest of the cast but simply a truism that can be coped with without disparaging her associates. In the first place, the play is upholstered more or less within the confines of Mary's orbit and if she were a wooden Indian the play would still rest on her shoulders. It does happen that Judith Anderson is a superb actress and the artistic restraint that she exerts so dexterously throughout the whole trying performance is a joy to observe and a lesson to remember.

buildings, would not fully open without striking the building across the slot.

We can do better, in this year of 1941, than foist such palpably quick and easy, but gratuitous and thoughtless building upon a long suffering public.

Negro Sent to County Jail

Last Monday Judge George P. Ross committed Charles T. Sherwood, 47-year-old negro, to the county jail for 30 days on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. Sherwood was arrested Saturday by Carmel police when it was discovered that license plates on the 1940 Pontiac coupe he had been driving belonged to another car, registered in his name.

Contents of the car were carefully examined. A loaded pistol was found in the glove compartment, and in the back, among clothes and shoes, were two other fully loaded guns, a Savage and a Colt, also a rifle, several expensive cameras, an elaborate set of burglar's tools, and many keys.

It was found that Sherwood had a police record in Los Angeles, for vagrancy and petty theft. He had lived in Carmel two weeks, working several days as cook in a restaurant. The police are investigating his background thoroughly.
